MORE GAMING RAIDS DEPEND ON COURT VIEW

Alleged Operators Taken in Impromptu Net Will Be Tried.

DECISION MAY START DOWNTOWN CLEAN-UP

Court action against operators of alleged gambling establishments raided by headquarters detectives in the last few days will be started next week and may inaugurate a concerted drive to eliminate gambling resorts in the downtown section.

District Attorney Leo A. Rover announced last night that charges of permitting gaming would be placed today against several men cought in the raids. The cases, he said, will be brought before Police Court next week.

nI a raid on Thirteenth street, near E street, yesterday, which resulted from an anonymous telephone call that some one had been "shot," the police found a short wave receiving set which had received the radio alarrb broadcast by police of the shooting. This caused the evacuation of the place by habitues.

Burke Ready to Raid 100 Places.

Meanwhile, Capt. Frank S. W. Burke, head of the First Precinct, announced that if warrantless raids would be countenanced by the court he would be ready, at "the drop of the hat," to raid 100 suspected places in his jurisdiction.

Mr. Rover has reserved decision on procedure against a place where alleged liquor was found until further information is obtained as to the method of entry.

In regard to validity of the raids on the alleged gambling places, Mr. Rover has taken the position that the police officers were invited in. Under the law, he pointed out, an officer entering a public place may make arrests if he sees violation of the law.

Police Cars Draw Parade.

The detectives who made the arrests were admitted to the places while they were "looking for a couple of fellows." While there they saw evidence of law violation and the places were raided.

In response to an alarm that a man had been "shot" at the Thirteenth street establishment yesterday, radio cars, motorcycle police and headquarters cars, all with shrieking sirens, sped to the place, drawing in their wake hundreds of motorists.

Instead of finding some one shot, they found the place rather tranquil. Only one man was found on the third floor, although there were evidences of the hasty departure of many others. A short-wave radio set, which police believe received the police alarm, is thought to be the reason for the presence of only one man in the place.

Gambling Apparatus Seized.

When the detectives arrived they were refused admission to the rooms, but two doors were battered down, and the police confiscated a batch of gambling paraphernalia. In the place, police said, were two paying teller windows. Richard Lauxman, 51 years old, of F street near Thirteenth street northeast, was charged with permitting gaming.

Police officials pointed out yesterday that the series of raids were a "little different" from a raid without a warrant. The detectives, they said, stumbled across the evidence while making an investigation in the theft of liquor from the Legation of El Salvador.

The difficulty of making a warrantied raid against a gambling place, Inspector Shelby explained, is that it is necessary for a police officer to make a play, obtain the name of the person who accepted the bet, the name of the owner of the establishment, the name or number of the race played, the name of the horse, the name of the jockey, the tarck price and the name of the track.

No Force Was Used.

All this is required before a warrant will be issued to raid a place. In the recent cases, it was pointed out, the detectives were admitted to the place by the operators and used no force. When they saw the law violated they made the arrests.

Commenting on the reprimand given Lieut. Frank Varney, for conducting a warrantless raid early this year, Mr. Rover said, the police officer battered in the doors because of his suspicions that a gaming place was in operation. This, Mr. Rover said, did not constitute a valid entry and the case was nolle prossed.

Albert Gordon, 25 years old, of Princeton place near Warder street northwest, the last man held in connection with the fatal shooting of Jack Cunningham, police informer,

Sales of Autos Show Increase During April

(Associated Press.)

The automobile industry sold a total of 335,706 cars of all kinds last month, as compared with 276,405 in March. Figures made public yesterday by the Commerce Department showed 285,028 passenger cars, 50,015 trucks and 655 taxicabs were sold, compared with 230,834 passenger cars, 45,161 trucks and 410 taxicabs during March.

Although the output of automobile factories has shown a steady increase since January, the production still was considerably below that of April, 1930, when 444,024 automobiles were sold by factories.

Boats nad Planes Seek Five New Yorkers Still Missing.

New York, May 27 (A.P.).—The body of a second victim of the foundered sloop Sea Fox, which put out from City Island Saturday with a party of seven prominent young New Yorkers, was recovered from Long Island Sound today.

Half a mile off shore from Norwalk, Conn., a boatman found the body of Miss Doris Dewey, 29, psychologist at Bellevue Hospital. She was clad in pink lounging pajamas over a bathing suit.

The body of Mrs. Marcia Snedden, 25, a psychiatrist, known professionally as Miss Marcia Mendenhall, was recovered yesterday.

Little hope was held that the other members of the party were alive, but eight Coast Guard cutters, a group of police patrol boats from New York and three airplanes searched Long Island waters all day.

Two life preservers from the Sea Fox were found. One was partly burned, leading to the belief there had been a fire aboard the sloop—while she was fightnig squally weath-

BUSES MENACE RAIL SERVICES, I. C. C. IS TOLD

LOSS TO INVESTORS IS HELD PROBABLE

Bitter Fight in Congress Is Deemed Certain Over Regulation Issue.

(United Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission was told yesterday by the Association of Railway Executives that unless provision is made for regulation of interstate motor transportation there is "a real question as to whether the railroads can continue to give the service which the public needs."

This blunt statement of the railroads' position is taken here as another indication of a bitter struggle between the railroads and the motor transportation interests during the coming session of Congress. The drive for Federal regulation of buses and trucks has been intensified by the drastic falling off of railroad earnings during the last four months—a decline which, if continued throughout the year, will not allow many of the roads to pay interest charges on their bonds.

The brief filed yesterday by Alfred P. Thom, counsel for the railroad association, is an effort to induce the Interstate Commerce Commission to recommend legislation by Congress empowering the commission to regulate buses and trucks in interstate commerce.

Legislative Efforts Blocked.

Earlier efforts to obtain such legislation have been blocked in the Senate where a bill passed by the House was twice sidetracked and finally recommitted to the interstate commerce committee. When the bill was sent back the last time Chairman James Couzens (Republican), Michigan, blamed the "railroad lobby" for its delay, suggesting that it was due to opposition to a Senate committee amendment forbidding railroads to operate competing bus lines.

Yesterday it was learned that some members of the Senate committee contemplate asking for a thorough investigation of the entire transportation system—railroads, buses, trucks, water transportation and pipe lines—during the session starting in December.

Thom's brief argued that Federal regulation of railroads was based upon the theory that they had a practical monopoly of land transportation, but that now when the monopoly is destroyed by truck and bus competition, the newer agencies of transportation should be subjected to the same kind of regulation.

Sees Losses for Investors.

He cited losses which would ensue for thousands of investors if the railroads are not protected against unrestrained competition and advanced the argument that public interest requires such protection because the motor transport system can never entirely supplant the railroads.

"A conclusive reason in favor of regulation," he said, "would seem to be that, without it, Congress can not maintain as to interstate commerce

DISTRICT CURB ON SOARING TAX URGED BY LORD

Common Sense Is Cited as Guide in Fixing City Revenues.

EXPERT WILL SUBMIT DATA TO COMMITTEE

Report Suggests New Levy on Incomes as Addition to Capital Funds.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

District taxes can be kept from going up and up to the point of confiscation only by the introduction of common sense in the administration of municipal affairs, George Lord, tax expert of the special House committee on District fiscal relations, warned yesterday on the eve of the submission of his first report to the committee.

Though the Washington property owner possibly is not bearing as heavy a burden as has been imposed on others in some sections of the country, the tendency throughout the country is to find new sources of revenues by taxation and spend the additional revenues with no thought of reducing the often inequitable and burdensome taxes already in existence, Mr. Lord said.

Mr. Lord's report to the committee will contain no recommendations. Recommendations are for the House committee, of which Representative Carl E. Mapes (Republican), of Michigan, is chairman, Mr. Lord said. However, the tax expert has been at work on a study comparing Washington taxes with taxes in other cities, and he will submit several volumes of statistics and analyses to the committee when it meets here on June 9.

Data May Be Sought.

Undoubtedly Mr. Lord will be questioned at length by members of the committee, and his answers, based on his long experience in tax matters, will be a part of the official record of the committee. Some of Mr. Lord's opinions include:

The District government is losing money because it has no inheritance tax. At least the municipal government could collect 80 per cent of the existing Federal inheritance tax.

"Why should Washington be a haven for wealthy persons who wish to dodge the inheritance tax which is common elsewhere?" Mr. Lord asked.

Intangible personal property is too easy to hide from taxation. An income tax should be substituted for the existing District intangible personal property tax.

Automobiles should be taxed on a different basis. The personal property tax on District automobiles is much lower than elsewhere. The personal property tax should be abolished and a tax based on the weight of the automobiles substituted.

23 Cities in Survey.

Twenty-three cities are included in the comparative study which Mr. Lord has made and will submit to the forthcoming meeting of the House committee.

Although the relative position of Washington has not been worked out in the statistical studies, a preliminary estimation indicates that the tax burden in Washington is lighter than it is in other places.

That would seem to indicate that Mr. Lord's report would justify an in-

TEST BALLOON SOARS OVER ITALIAN LINE; 2 MEN THOUGHT DEAD

Log of Scientific Balloon

Augsburg, Bavaria, May 27 (U.P.).—The balloon in which Prof. Auguste Piccard and Charles Kipfer ventured into the stratosphere was drifting steadily southward past the Alps and over Italy toward the Adriatic tonight.

Its route was as follows:

3:37 a. m.—Departed from Augsburg.

7 a. m.—Sighted from Kaufbeuren, believed in stratosphere.

8 a. m.—Sighted from Kempten, drifting toward Lake Constance.

10 a. m.—Sighted from Lake Constance, believed at record breaking height.

2 p. m.—Sighted above Schongau, near Wuermsee.

3 p. m.—Sighted from Oberammergau, believed oxygen about exhausted.

7:30 p. m.—Sighted near Patenkirchen, apparently out of control.

8:30 p. m.—Sighted south of Innsbruck.

9 p. m.—Sighted at Landeck, in Tyrol, believed to be signalling with lights but unable to land.

10:30 p. m.—Flew over Bolzano in Italy, drifting southward.

Bag Is Reported Sighted Over Bozen During Early Morning.

SUPPLY OF OXYGEN IS BELIEVED SPENT

Airport Commander Denies Receiving Answers to Light Signals.

Augsburg, Austria, Thursday, May 28 (A.P.).—The stratosphere balloon of Prof. Auguste Piccard crossed the northern Italian border early this morning after a helter skelter "hedge hopping" flight above the Alps and gave rise to a growing belief that Prof. Piccard and his companion, Charles Kipper, could not remain alive.

After being sighted over several towns in western Austria, tracing a southward flight from Innsbruck, the balloon was reported sighted by the gendarmerie over Bozen, Italy, continuing its southward course.

Earlier in the night there were reports that what were thought to be distress signals from the two men enclosed in the aluminum ball attached to the balloon, were seen, but the commander of the airport at Innsbruck was reported to have denied that light signals he flashed when the balloon appeared there had been answered by the scientists.

Friends Still Hoping.

The fact that the balloon continued in the air, with no apparent effort being made to bring it to earth, was considered a further argument in favor of the theory that Prof. Piccard and Kipfer had perished.

Friends of Prof. Piccard at Munich, however, were reported as finding grounds for hope in the continued flight. They declared the fact that the balloon maintained a fairly even altitude, rising only as it crossed the Alpine heights, indicated that the huge bag still was being guided by a human hand.

Reports from Innsbruck said that the balloon was being tossed about like a ball in the wind, at a height of 15,000 feet, when it was sighted there.

The balloon was sighted over Oetztal and Landeck after it disappeared from Innsbruck at 9 p. m.

From then on it was reported from Wems, Merano and Brenner, and finally over Bozen, Italy.

Signals Believed Seen.

Observers at Landeck, the message said, also believed they could discern distress signals.

It was believed the scientists might have opened a port hole in the aluminum sphere in order to signal to the earth.

Authorities at Oetztal and Landeck sent out a detachment of motorcyclists to give assistance should the balloon land. The gendarmerie in the neighborhood of Innsbruck was also instructed to hold itself in readiness in case the balloon descended in the vicinity.

Apprehension was felt for the scientists chiefly because they carried only enough oxygen to last ten hours. They left the ground at 3:55 a. m. and at the time the balloon was sighted near Innsbruck and nearby points nearly twice the ten hours' time had elapsed. They originally intended the flight to last no longer than five to seven hours.

News Given Over Radio.

Intense interest in the outcome was evidenced throughout Germany. Telephone calls came from various parts of the country throughout the day and radio announcers continually broke their programs to give the latest news of the balloon.

The goal of the two scientists, in the earth's stratosphere, would, if they reached it, have led them into spaces never before entered by man.

Storms and Fogs Over Italy.

Venice, Italy (Thursday), May 28 (U.P.).—Stormy weather, strong winds and fog prevailed early today in the northern Italian districts, particularly along the Austrian frontier and near Bolzano and Meran, near where the experimental balloon of Prof. Auguste Piccard was reported.

Telephonic inquiries throughout the Bolzano district failed to reveal news of the balloon. It was pointed out that the weather conditions would make it difficult to locate or aid the balloon if it were in the surrounding mountainous region.

Earlier messages received at Augsburg, Bavaria, had reported the Pic-

FASCIST STUDENTS CALL POPE TRAITOR

Vatican-Government Rift Is Feared as Religious Attacks Continue.

Rome, May 27 (A.P.).—Continuing attacks which observers believed might lead to a serious rift between the Vatican and the Italian government, Fascist students tonight stoned the offices of the Catholic publishing house, Civilta Cattolica.

After breaking many windows with stones, the students rushed into the offices and threw copies of the book, "Il Papa" (the Pope), from the windows.

Then, taking an oil portrait of Pope Pius XI from the wall, the students carried it to the street, brandished it, and cried "Here is a traitor to his country." Throwing the picture to the cobblestones of the street, they tramped upon it.

Afterward piles of the books which were hexed out of the windows were taken to the Piazza Colonna, flanking the foreign office, where they were burned, together with a large number of copies of the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano.

The march upon the Catholic publishing house was made without police hindrance. Police dispersed the group at the Piazza Colonna, after which the students assembled in smaller groups and continued to parade the streets, singing the Fascist hymn and shouting remarks directed against the church.

One of these groups was led by a long-haired student who was one of the ring leaders of this morning's demonstration. As he addressed his comrades near the Piazza San Silvestro he was interrupted by another student who said: "You are doing more harm to fascism than good."

TORNADO KILLS TWO AND DERAILS TRAIN

Heavy Steel Cars Are Tossed From Track as Twister Hits Dakotas.

Moorhead, Minn., May 27 (U.P.).—A tornado of heroic proportions derailed the heavy steel cars of the "Empire Builder," fast Northern Pacific passenger train, late today, killing one man and injuring 22 others.

A farmer 18 miles away also was killed by the same vicious blast of wind, which apparently started in South Dakota and swirled across the Red River, skirting the cities of Fargo, N. Dak., and Moorhead.

The man killed in the unique train wreck was identified tentatively as a "Mr. Anderson," of Montesano, Wash.

Of the sixteen passengers and six members of the crew injured, four were hurt seriously.

The injured were rushed to hospitals here and in Fargo, across the Red River. All available physicians, nurses and ambulances rushed to the scene on roads choked by sight-seers who braved torrential rains which followed the Tornado.

Survivors said the train was rumbling toward St. Paul from the Pacific Coast when the screeching green cloud swirled out of the West, striking the train broadside.

One Pullman car after another tilted at perilous angles, until every car in the train was derailed. Only the engine remained on the tracks.

It was more than an hour before rescue crews could extricate all the passengers, most of whom were forced to climb through broken windows.

Capt. Hawks Tours Europe in 10 Hours

Flier Breakfasts in London, Lunches in Berlin and Dines in Paris.

Paris, May 27 (A.P.).—Capt. Frank Hawks, riding his fast airplane like a magic carpet, toured Europe in ten hours today, having breakfast in London, luncheon in Berlin and dinner this evening in Paris.

This morning he flew from Le Bourget to Croydon Field, England, in a little more than an hour, had breakfast and went on to Berlin, covering that stretch in 3 hours and 15 minutes.

The flight down to Le Bourget ended a little after 6 o'clock this evening and the American speedster claimbed into an automobile to meet Mrs. Hawks, who had tickets for the theater this evening. The last leg required 3 hours and 1 minute.

Tomorrow he will receive the 1930 trophy of the International League of Aviators.

Carolina Assembly To End Record Session

Raleigh, N. C., May 27 (A.P.).—The North Carolina General Assembly today prepared to adjourn after 141 days in session, the longest session in the history of the State.

Sine die adjournment was expected by midnight. The Senate had the revenue bill up for final reading, but its passage was assured. A controversy with the House over the measure brought about the long session. The House favored a sales tax to relieve property taxes, but the Senate refused to accept it.

College Official Told To Give Up $50 or Die

Ashland, Va., May 27 (A.P.).—Threats against the life of Dr. H. C. Hatcher, vice president and financial secretary of Randolph-Macon College, were contained in a note left last night at the Hatcher home

The note directed that Dr. Hatcher deposit $50 under a tree on the campus and threatened death if he failed to do so.

DAWES SAYS SUDDEN MASS OPTIMISM DUE

Home on Brief Trip, General Sees Change to Usher Back Prosperity.

New York, May 27 (A.P.).—The opinion that a sudden change to optimism which will usher in better business conditions is "about due" was expressed today by Gen. Charles G. Dawes, Ambassador to Great Britain, banker and the man for whom the Dawes plan was named.

Returning to the United States for a short business visit, the former Vice President said that prosperity would return only slowly, but that the mass trend away from pessimism would be sudden.

He said the stock exchange had "ceased to be a reflection of any mass attitude except that of inertia."

"For the first evidence of the existence of that general better feeling of the masses from which springs increased mass activity in business," he said, "we must look to statistics which really measure a mass movement—say in electric power consumption—not to the prices at which a few discouraged holders are selling stocks to a few wise buyers on the stock exchange.

"It was in June, 1929, four months before the stock panic, that electric power consumption started to decrease. Just as the stock market was months late in reflecting a mass change to pessimism in 1929, so it

TEN-DAY WAIT SEEN FOR ELECTRIC ORDER

Hearing on Rates Ends With Arguments on Utility Body's Authority.

The three-day hearing before the Public Utilities Commission on the sliding scale by which electric rates are fixed for the District was concluded late yesterday after the day had been devoted to lengthy arguments by the three attorneys involved.

While there is little doubt that the commission intends to attempt a modification of the scale used for the past six years under the consent decree, it will perhaps be ten days or two weeks before a decision is announced. Two other important issues face the utilities body and will require attention before another move is made in the electric rate controversy.

Either today or tomorrow members of the commission are expected to confer with Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and his special utilities assistant, William A. Roberts, regarding steps to be taken respective to the ownership of the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Co. Monday a hearing on the interstate bus problem is scheduled.

Out of the mass of exhibits, technical data, and legal citations and arguments that have been presented to the commission during the hear-

Green Offers 4-Point Program as Trade Aid

(Associated Press.)

A warning that less than normal spring employment gains indicate worse suffering next winter than last unless the problem is faced immediately was issued yesterday by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Green offered a four-point program for reducing distress and encouraging economic recovery, headed by the sugegstion that employers guarantee continued work to as many of their employes as possible "without taking undue risk."

He also proposed maintenance of wage levels, equitable distribution by industry of all available work among employes on a pro rata basis, and community organization for relief work.

Saying employment gained slightly in the first half of May, the labor head added the increases had been "so small that they leave the problem almost as serious as at the first of the year." Considering that the resources of many families are becoming exhausted, he said the problem was "far more serious."

"Compared with spring improvement in a prosperous year," he said, "this year's employment gains have been small indeed."

He estimated that less than 1,000,000 of the 6,300,000 out of work in January had found jobs in industry, while counting agriculture, the total would be less than 1,500,000.

"We must begin planning at once if we are to prevent widespread suffering," he said. "Befofe all else is the problem of security. Workers want to know that they can count on a job.

"Without taking undue risk, most employers could unquestionably guarantee work to a certain portion of their work force. Practically every employer can estimate the number of men he will need for a minimum force even in dull seasons.

"A guarantee of employment to even a portion of the country's work forces would help business revival enormously and bring relief from anxiety to thousands of workers' families.

"At present workers are holding all they can reserve for fear of losing their jobs. They can not do otherwise, for they can not see ahead. The funds they reserve amount to billions of dollars. If they are sure of their jobs the release of these funds would be an immense stimulus to business.

"Another influence which contributes to continuation of the existing distressing situation is the wage cutting policy being pursued by some thoughtless employers.

"This sniping at wage standards creates an unfavorable psychological condition. Working men through fear of wage reductions and loss of

U. S. Mayors, In Row, Name Body to Govern French Trip

Controversy Over Liquor Drinking Followed by Threatened Dispute Over Tour Leadership; New Speakers Are to Be Chosen Each Day.

Paris, May 27 (U.P.).—American mayors touring France were forced today to establish a "Soviet council" to govern their tour and attempt to end friction among themselves.

Their controversy over whether they should drink liquor at public affairs in France has been followed by a threatened dispute over leadership of their tour.

After a day of smoldering arguments and suppressed sneers, a public controversy was narrowly averted at a luncheon at the Town Hall. The mayors then decided to settle their difficulties in private and went into secret executive session at Claridges to determine who should make speeches representing the party and how long they should speak.

The trouble had come into the open after a 30-minute address at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by Mayor George Baker of Portland, Oreg., who previously had been elected chairman of the party. After the speech some of the mayors complained that Baker was "dominating the show."

Later the rich food served by their French hosts and the bubbling champagne spurred the controversy and it almost broke into a public affair at the conclusion of spectacular municipal ceremonies for presentation of a bust of the late American Ambassador Myron T. Herrick.

At that time Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, of Milwaukee, turning arbiter, card balloon drifting near Bolzano. Previously it had been sighted in the rough district of northern Italy, near the Austrian frontier.

Berlin (Thursday), May 28 (A.P.).—A Telegrafen Union dispatch from Munich early this morning said that friends of Prof. Auguste Piccard were optimistic about his fate, basing their belief on the fact that the balloon maintained a regular altitude during its flight, rising only when it reached the Alps.

U. S. Scientists Interested.

Pasadena, Calif., May 27 (A.P.).—Scientists at the California Institute of Technology were keenly interested today in the attempt of Prof. Auguste Piccard to explore the stratorsphere in a balloon, but believe it would add little to the knowledge of the cosmic ray, an announced object.

Dr. Robert Millikan, regarded as a foremost authority of the cosmic ray, said the air cruise undoubtedly would give the experimenters valuable atmospheric data, however.

Small balloons carrying only instruments have been sent up to great heights, Dr. Millikan said, and the work carried out in this manner probably was as effective in studying the ray as any that could be done in a human ascension.

DISTRICT CURBING OF TAX IS URGED

creased tax rate in Washington and a reduced appropriation from the Federal Treasury for the annual upkeep of the National Capital.

Mr. Lord, however, doesn't hold that view. Taxes generally throughout the country, he believes, have reached the point of confiscation, with thousands of small home owners throughout the land being squeezed out of possession of their homes by oppressive taxes.

Common Sense Urged.

Common sense must be employed by legislators and the advocates of this or that, he said. Mr. Lord cited examples of extravagance encountered in the course of his experience of many years as director of the Taxpayers League of Michigan, a member of the Michigan Legislature, chairman of the tax committee of the Legislature, and many other jobs having to do directly with the question of public taxation which won him a national reputation as a tax expert.

One of these examples he encountered in a survey of schools of Michigan. He found that $200 colonial copper lamps were placed on either side of each of the several entrances, and on the top of the flagstaff on one school; while others were decorated with "elaborate and expensive Masonic and other emblems which were not at all necessary to a good schooling for any boy or girl."

Though schools and libraries were the outlet of "unnecessarily large amounts of public funds, salaries paid teachers were not too large, and some were getting too little, Mr. Lord said.

Comparison Called Unfair.

Comparison of the per capita tax paid by residents of one city with those in another, Mr. Lord said, was not a fair comparison. The theory of taxation was based on ability to pay, and a wealthy city would be able to pay, without burden, a greater per capita than a less wealthy one.

The meeting of the committee at which Mr. Lord will submit his first report is likely to last a week, and Representative Mapes previously has announced his purpose to give to Washington residents and representatives of the various interests in the city a full opportunity to analyze and reply to whatever information is submitted.

This means that there will be further hearings before the committee at which Washington representatives will testify, though when these hearings will be held will not be decided until after the committee members gather for the study of Mr. Lord's preliminary report and decide what further information they want from him.

er Saturday night or early Sunday. A woman's coat, of excellent material, also was found.

The missing are Donald Snedden, 28, associate professor of education at New York University, husband of Marcia Mendenhall Snedden and owner and navigator of the sloop; Robert Mendenhall, 29, of the statistics bureau, Columbia University, brother of Mrs. Snedden; His wife, Florence, 28; Mark Coyne, 28, instructor at the Riverdale Country School, and Robert Johnston, night club entertainer.

Johnston was the most widely known. He has appeared in smart night places in New York, London and Paris, his partner being his wife, Muriel. She recently sued Miss Adele Fortune Ryan, granddaughter of Thomas Fortune Ryan and heiress to part of his $125,000,000 estate, alleging alienation of affections.

Reports were circulated that Miss Ryan was aboard, but John Barry Ryan, jr., her brother, said she is in Europe.

Finding of a blackened oil tank from the sloop's stove floating off Norwalk and another charred life preserver near where the body of Miss Dewey was discovered, strengthened the explosion theory tonight.

Boatmen were convinced the Sea Fox blew up. They expressed the belief that some member of the party attempted to fix the balky engine and dropped a lighted cigarette or match causing the gas tank to explode.

Kreitzer's Parole Is Recommended

Prince Georges Slayer, on Dare, Is Serving Three-Year Term.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 27.—Among the twenty prisoners recommended for parole today at a hearing before Ambrose J. Kennedy, State parole commissioner, was Henry Kreitzer, serving three years in the penitentiary for fatally shooting N. Melvin Ryon, brother of a former State's attorney of Prince Georges County.

Kreitzer, who was sentenced for manslaughter in April, 1929, fired the fatal shot in his home at Bowie after a joking challenge by Mr. Ryon, who said: "Let's see what kind of nerve you've got," it was testified at the inquest.

According to the witnesses, Kreitzer got possession of the pistol while searching for a note of payment due on an automobile. He pointed the weapon at several other persons in the room before turning it on Mr. Ryon, it was testified.

6 KILLED, 28 HURT IN SPANISH STRIKES

Martial Law Is Declared at San Sebastian to Deal With Riots.

Madrid, May 27 (A.P.).—Six persons were killed and 28 injured today in labor strike disorders at San Sebastian. Martial law was declared there to deal with the situation.

Some of the casualties occurred when civil guards fired into striking fisheren and other agitators who were attempting a demonstration in the streets to force a general walk-out in support of demands for higher wages.

Another clash with guards occurred as the strikers attempted to attack a factor. Several were killed and wounded in subsequent fighting. Several women were among those injured.

Reinforced civil guards tonight patrolled San Sebastian, although the city was reported quieter. Other towns of the region also were under guard to prevent a spread of the disorders. Late reports were that republicans planned a counter demonstration against the strikers at San Sebastian.

Guards at Barcelona continued their vigilance tonight, and the city was tranquil after striking bricklayers made an unsuccessful attempt to burn two coal factories. Coal miners there also threatened to declare a walkout unless wages were increased.

Meanwhile, Largo Caballero, minister of labor, sent representatives to Vigo to attempt to settle the fishermen's strike there. Other points where martial law is in force in the face of unsettled labor conditions include Seville, Elda, Badajoz, and Valencia. The government has expressed its determination to enforce strict order.

Finance Minister Prieto today announced that the Bank of Spain had been authorized to increase its banknote circulation to six billion pesetas about ($600,000,000) after the advisory board had declared Spain had the resources to overcome all difficulties.

Theoretically the peseta showed improvement on the exchange today, being quoted around 10.20 to the dollar, but some private transactions were made at 10.30.

Triplett Estate Curator Chosen

Special to The Washington Post.

Woodstock, Va., May 27.—Awaiting final disposition of the contested will of the late J. I. Triplett, who had named Herbert Trotter as executor, Judge Philip Williams here today appointed Herbert Trotter as curator of the estate. In his purported will, which was probated in 1929, Mr. Triplett, well-known valley miller, orchardist, power pioneer and financier, authorized that his $100,000 estate be used in the building of a business college near Mount Jackson, Va., his native town, 12 miles south of here.

Acting as curator, Mr. Trotter will have authority to look after the properties of Mr. Triplett, including holdings in Virginia, Florida and Pennsylvania. Mr. Trotter was required by order of the court to execute a bond of $100,000 for the faithful performance of duty.

Judge J. S. Tavenner and R. Gray Williams are representing Mr. Trotter in his effort to uphold the will, and T. W. Harrison, Lewis C. Williams, J. Donald Richards, H. R. Kern, M. L. Walton, sr., and Philip Williams are representing the heirs contesting validity of the will.

BLAZE AT CULPEPER DESTROYS ELEVATOR

Loss of Mill and Wheat Is Placed Near $70,000 in Night Fire.

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., May 27.—Fire of unknown origin early today destroyed the mill of the Culpeper Milling Co. with an accompanying loss of from 60,000 to 70,000. Insurance covers about half the loss.

The blaze was discovered at 2 o'clock in the morning by a policeman who saw flames breaking through the roof and by the time the volunteer fire company reached the scene, in less than 10 minutes, the fire had made such headway that it was impossible to do more than hold it to the mill building proper.

The grain elevator, which was part of the mill, caught fire and about 20,000 bushels of wheat was destroyed, but the warehouse in which a large amount of bagged flour and meal was stored was saved.

Part of the rear wall of the mill, which paralleled the railroad, collapsed, taking out all telegraph lines, passing through Culpeper and several freight and passenger trains were somewhat delayed.

Town authorities say this was the worst fire in Culpeper since 1924 and estimate that about 165,000 gallons of water were used in combatting it.

Rodgers Is Named Academy Speaker

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 27.—Vice Admiral William L. Rodgers, U. S. N. (retired), of Washington, has been chosen to deliver the address dedicating the Thompson Stadium at the Naval Academy on Saturday. Admiral Rodgers is a graduate of the class of 1878.

The occasion will be the annual reunion of graduates of the academy.

The Thompson Stadium is the present football field, known as Farragut Field. It was decided to change the name as a memorial to the late Col. Robert M. Thompson, of New York, graduate of the academy in the class of 1868, who was the institution's greatest benefactor, particularly in athletics. Dedicatory ceremonies will be held at 11 a. m. and the alumni will hold a banquet at night.

Lynchburg Postoffice Site Deal Completed

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., May 27.—Checks aggregating $49,507.91 have been mailed from the Federal District Court here to complete purchase of Ninth street property, which is to be included in the site for the new postoffice building. The site will occupy half a block from Ninth to Tenth streets.

Buildings purchased include the old Westminster Presbyterian Church, the News and Advance newspaper building and the Smith building. Work can not start on the new postoffice before early next fall.

TRADE LEADERS ASK TARIFF RATE SLASH

Lamont Assails Artificial Barriers at Parley of Business Chiefs.

New York, May 27 (A.P.).—Speakers at the National Foreign Trade Convention today told 2,000 delegates the United States is in the strongest commercial and financial position in the world and demanded that the world be allowed to take advantage of that position by reductions in tariffs here and abroad.

Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., said, "We should discourage attempts to raise artificial barriers against our foreign trade. If we want that trade to prosper we must make it as easy as possible."

James H. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, omitting reference to the tariff, urged development and preservation of home markets.

Peter Fletcher, president of the National Council of American Importers and Traders, Inc., accused the United States of bringing about a world-wide tariff war and advocated a special session of Congress to effect a 26 per cent horizontal tariff cut on advalorem rates and 50 per cent cut on specific rates of duty.

Howard S. Cullman, commissioner of the Port of New York authority, said continued bars against foreign imports would effect a decrease in commodity exports, while "repayment of interest and principal on our funds invested abroad is not very promising."

Analysis of the market for cotton goods with a view to finding new outlets was urged by Edward T. Pickard, chief of the textile division of the Commerce Department. He suggested the possibility of the textile men assisting the advertising of products of factories using cotton goods.

"One important need in the textile industries today is economic research," he said. "This," he added, "would suggest an intelligent effort to adapt distribution practices to modern business trends to eliminate costly and uneconomic methods and to aggressively and scientifically lay siege to outlets and markets."

Horace Bowker, president of the American Agricultural Chemical Co., said real farm relief would come only when American farmers reduced their production costs.

BUS-RAIL BATTLE IN CONGRESS LOOMS

the salutary principles of regulation which forbid unreasonable rates, rebates, unreasonable preferences and advantages and unjust discriminations, and without it, shippers can not be assured of the equality of treatment and commercial opportunity which appropriate regulation would provide."

Regulatory Powers Stressed.

A substantial part of Thom's brief is devoted to argument designed to sustain the constitutional power of Congress to regulate motor trucks operating in interstate commerce under contract, a right challenged by some of the opponents of truck regulation.

The contention of the railroads is that Federal regulation should include passenger common carriers and charter buses, and common carrier and contract trucks, but not taxicabs, school or hotel buses, or trucks operated solely in the business of the owner.

Those vehicles subject to regulation would be operated under certificates issued by the commission on a showing of convenience and necessity and subject to the filing of accounts and rate regulation. The railroads also want the right to engage in bus and truck business.

Subcommittees Study Freight Rate Increase

New York, May 27 (A.P.).—The committee of Eastern railroad presidents appointed to formulate a petition for an increase of freight rates today voted to refer the matter to the legal, traffic and accounting subcommittees, which are to report June 5.

This action follows announcement by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday that if proceedings for rate changes are to be started the commission will not take the initiative.

Unofficial explanations of the committee's action centered about the fact that a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission must be specific in amount of increase sought. This matter will be decided by the subcommittees.

Former Mayor's Sentence Set Aside.

Chicago, May 27 (A.P.).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today set aside the conviction and sentences of former Mayor Raleigh P. Hale of East Chicago, Ind., and six others on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

HARRISON FROWNS ON TAX INCREASES

Democratic Senator Urges Public Debt Payments Be Curtailed.

(Associated Press.)

Chances of a tax increase at the next session of Congress lessened considerably yesterday, when Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, the ranking Democrat of the finance committee, declared against any such legislation.

Senator Harrison's words on revenue legislation go a long way in Democratic councils and the Democrats are about even numerically with the Republicans in the new Congress.

The Mississippi senator assailed Secretary Mellon for talking about tax revision and called upon the administration to pare down expenditures and to slow up debt retirement during the period of depression. However, the administration so far has refrained from a definite recommendation for a tax increase, which has been demanded by Republican independents.

Urges Slower Debt Payments.

Senator Harrison proposed that the Treasury bridge the prospective $900,000,000 deficit this year with an issue of short-term securities and curtail payments on the public debt for a while, saying the debt retirement program is seven years ahead of schedule.

"I am against any tax increase at this time," he announced. "The American people are in no position to pay increased taxes, and it is not the time for Congress to try to formulate a permanent tax policy.

"Our country is in a terrible plight and everyone, without respect to political affiliations, ought to do what he can toward restoring confidence so that business can get on its feet and normalcy prevail. I can't understand how Mr. Mellon can direct criticism at Congress for reducing taxes too much and give the impression that there ought to be a tax revision program that would increase the taxes on millions now paying and on many more not now paying levies. Such utterances from him as the spokesman of the administration frighten business and check the restoration of confidence.

Previous Taxes Held Excessive.

"Mr. Mellon and the Republican administration have from year to year and over the protest of Congress gouged American taxpayers in excessive tax requirements over and above those necessary for the operation of the Government and the replenishment of the sinking fund by a total of $3,500,000,000. They have taken that amount and applied it in retiring the national debt until now we are seven years ahead of our program.

"If that be true then there should be a let up in the too-rapid retirement of the national debt. Instead of talking so much about increasing taxes, let the administration retrench more and draw in some of the large expenditures we now see going on.

"No, this is not the time for increasing taxes. If this administration instead of studying charts would have the courage to take hold and assume some leadership and let us catch up with our debt retiring program we would not only need no increase in taxes, but in a short while we will be able to reduce taxes."

Roosevelt Lauds Tariff of French

Governor, Back From Trip, Praises Help Given to Farmers.

New York, May 27 (A.P.).—Praise for France's approach to the problem of balancing agriculture and industry—including the country's protective tariff on farm products—was expressed today by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The New York executive, prominently mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential nominee in 1932, returned from a visit to his ill mother in France, where he also found time to confer with officials and experts on agricultural problems.

The governor had nothing to say concerning the legislative investigation of New York City nor the hearings of removal charges against District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, now in their last stages. He said he had been away three weeks and had not been able to keep in close touch with them.

work are curtailing their buying power and are purchasing only to the extent of the barest necessities.

"Third—Industry must fully appreciate its responsibility to divide equitably upon a pro rata basis all available work among all its employes. No man should be deprived of his share. Each employe has a moral claim upon industry for a share at least of all work available.

"Fourth—Communities must plan for relief through industrial funds, through municipal and relief organizations. For the relief problem next winter bids fair to be worse than last.

"Unless industry, labor and our governments face this problem now, next winter's suffering may be worse than last."

DAWES SAYS SUDDEN MASS OPTIMISM DUE

probably will be months late in reflecting the mass change to optimism when it occurs.

"Prosperity, which is another name for activity in general exchanges, will return only slowly; for our business system is an enormous machine. But that mass change in attitude to optimism, which will mark the beginning of the upturn in general business, will come just as suddenly as did the change to mass pessimism in 1929.

"It is about due, in my judgment."

Gen. Dawes will spend a few days at Senator Dwight W. Morrow's home in Englewood, N. J., after which he will visit President Hoover. Then he will go to Chicago for two weeks in connection with preparations for the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago. He is chairman of the exposition's finance committee.

Wage-Cut Desire By Bankers Denied

Question Whether Levels Can Be Maintained, However, Says Stephenson.

Chicago, May 27 (A.P.).—Rome C. Stephenson, of South Bend, president of the American Bankers Association, said today: "Bankers do not want to see wages reduced, but the only question is whether they can be maintained under present economic conditions."

He told the Illinois Bankers Association, "Some one in Washington seems to be disposed to trace this wage reduction movement to the bankers.

"On the contrary, the bankers realize that in order to have prosperity wages must remain on a high plane. They should be as high as activities will bear. The only question is whether they can be maintained under present economic conditions."

FALL'S PLEA IS SENT TO SUPREME COURT

Tribunal Expected to Weigh Petition for Review by Next Monday.

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court yesterday received Albert B. Fall's request for a review of his conviction of accepting a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil man.

The tribunal is expected to consider the petition from the former Interior Secretary before it adjourns for the summer recess next Monday. A reversal of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals decision affirming the conviction and sentence of a years' imprisonment and a $100,000 fine is asked.

Last Monday the Supreme Court cleared the way for consideration of the petition by entering an order directing that all petitions filed before tomorrow in Government criminal cases be submitted directly to it for study.

Quick Action Challenged.

When the Fall petition was filed, the former Interior Secretary's chief counsel, Frank J. Hogan, challenged the authority of the court to give it immediate consideration. Under the rules of the court, Fall's counsel contended, the petition could not be considered until next October. This would permit Fall to remain at his home at Three Rivers, N. Mex.

His counsel contended the Supreme Court's order was issued at the request of Solicitor General Thacher. They maintained the Justice Department was not counsel in the case but that Atlee Pomerene, special Government counsel, should reply to the petition. This would give Pomerene insufficient time in which to answer, but the Justice Department took the position he would waive his right to answer in court to permit the court to decide by Monday whether it would review the case.

Fall's counsel also contended the order was not broad enough to cover the Fall case, but Charles E. Cropley, court clerk, expressed the opinion the court would decide on this matter when the petition is sent to the members in conference.

Review Refusal Means Jail.

Should the court decline to review the decision, Fall would be summoned to Washington to receive sentence and commitement to prison. He was convicted in October, 1929, in the District of Columbia Supreme Court and his conviction was affirmed last April.

From his New Mexico home, he then announced he would accept sentence, but his friends urged him to take the case to the higher court.

The petition suggested the court delay until next autumn consideration of the case. Fall challenged the validity of his indictment, activities of Government counsel, and the discharge of a woman juror, Beatrice P. Duke, he contended was qualified by Trial Judge William Hitz along with the judge's charge to the jury mentioning the possibility of clemency.

Queen Helen Accepts Fate Of Ouster From Roumania

Divorced Wife of Carol Reviews Unhappy Lot to English Friend, Saying Separation From Little Son Will Be Her Profound Sorrow.

London, May 27 (A.P.).—The tragic Queen of Roumania, Helen, divorced wife of King Carol, has accepted as certain that she must soon leave Roumania and become separated from her beloved little son, 9-year-old Crown Prince Michael.

An English woman friend who has just arrived in London from Bucharest told the Associated Press today of the pathetic conversation she had in Bucharest a few days ago with Queen Helen. Strong indications have come from sources close to the Roumanian government that Helen is to be removed from the list of the royal family and exiled from Roumania.

"No choice is left me," the queen told her English friend. "As between humiliation and departure I have chosen the latter—that is to say, I have resigned myself to what had to come sooner or later. No promises have been made to me. Only the statement that I could go away was reiterated. I could do nothing.

"I have been kept at arm's length for the past year. The date of my departure has not been fixed, but it probably will be when the official formalities in connection with the assembly of the new parliament are ended.

"I have one friend left in the country. I speak of Premier Jorga. He has been my steadfast friend and has behaved extremely correctly toward me.

"My life has been a sad one for years, and now I am going out into the dark. My inquiries abroad have not yet enabled me to decide where I shall take up permanent residence after leaving Roumania for good. It probably will be either Italy or France.

"There is no key to my future. I have lived in enforced retirement for a full year now, and I shall live the life of a recluse henceforward.

"My dear boy Michael was inconsolable when I told him what my life is to be henceforth. I never saw despair written more deeply on the face of a child before. I don't know where or how I shall be seeing him. That is my most profound sorrow."

MONTGOMERY DRIVE TO BE ENDED JUNE 1

Campaign Extended as Five Districts Meet or Top Their Quotas.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Three districts of Montgomery County have oversubscribed their quotas in the annual drive for funds of the Montgomery County Social Service League and two others have reached their quotas, it was reported yesterday to W. B. Armstrong, chairman of the finance committee.

The drive has been continued until June 1 to enable the other districts to complete their quotas that the $8,000 asked in public subscription can be raised. The league has a budget of $24,100, but the $8,000 is all that the public is asked to contribute, Mr. Armstrong said yesterday that the persons who have not been solicited can send their contributions to the league headquarters in Rockville, across from the courthouse.

Silver Spring, under the guidance of George W. Davis, branch committee chairman; Cabin John Park, C. H. Godbold, chairman, and Olney, Mrs. A. B. Beall, chairman, have oversubscribed their quotas. Damascus, headed by A. A. Moxley, and Kensington, under George C. Shinn, have reached their goal.

The annual meeting of the league will be held Monday night at 6:30 o'clock at the Manor Club, when it is hoped the various branch committee chairmen can report their quotas completed.

Widening of Montgomery avenue, main street of Rockville, in front of the new courthouse, will be discussed at a meeting between the Montgomery County Commissioners and Mayor J. Roger Spates and members of the Town Council today at Rockville.

The street at present presents a bottle neck aspect at the junction with Frederick road and constitutes a serious traffic hazard. Through the purchase of the courthouse site, the commissioners are now able to widen the street in keeping with the heavy volume of traffic and the necessity for a striking entrance to the plaza in front of the new county edifice.

Plans for the widening have been prepared by Irving C. Root, chief engineer of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and Harry Shaw, county engineer. If they are satisfactory, work will be started within a short time, according to Lacy Shaw, president of the Montgomery County Commissioners.

Dr. J. H. M. Knox, jr., chief of the bureau of child hygiene, of the Maryland State Department of Health, will address a meeting of the Montgomery County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The meeting will be held in the Montgomery County High School at Rockville.

It is urged that each school in the county have at least three representatives, and all parents and teachers of the county are invited to attend. Music will be furnished by the high school pupils.

A play, "The Fortune Hunter," will be presented Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the Presbyterian Hall at Takoma Park by the Takoma Players for the benefit of the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department. The play is directed by Dr. E. Clyde Shade.

The annual senior-alumni banquet of the Rockville High School will be held June 4 at the Episcopal Parish Hall in Rockville. All members of the alumni of the school are invited to attend and no formal invitations will be necessary. Tickets may be obtained from Miss Dorothy Wootton, class of '30, care of the high school, on or before June 2.

Rockville expended $35,750.66 in the fiscal year which ended the first Monday in May, according to the report of F. Bache Abert, town clerk and treasurer. This amount included $3,000 to repay money borrowed in the course of the year and $2,685 payment on the town's bonded indebtedness, leaving the expense of running the town for the year $27,000.

The town's bonded indebtedness is now about $54,000, which will be increased by $50,000 in the near future, when bonds will be issued to pay for street and sewer improvements and additions to the water system. The town has a taxable basis of approximately $1,900,000. The balance on hand at the end of the year was $52.13.

An autographed copy of the "American's Creed," autographed by the author, William Tyler Page, was presented to the Bethesda Woman's Club yesterday at its twentieth birthday anniversary party held in the clubhouse on Old Georgetown road. The framed copy was accepted by Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, retiring president, and Mrs. Edward M. Willis, newly elected president.

A traveling clock was presented to Mrs. Grosvenor by the executive committee of the club.

was released yesterday after being questioned at headquarters. The police satisfied themselves he knows nothing of the shooting.

Trio Freed When Attack Complainant Disappears

Although he told police that he received a threatening phone message and that he escaped a barrage of machine-gun bullets, Eddie Rutledge could not be located to prosecute three suspects arrested yesterday by Detective Sergt. Norman Hodkinson.

Rutledge told police that he was shot at 50 times by two men armed with a submachine gun as he was standing in front of his home on Twelfth street northwest near N street. He escaped by running indoors, he said. Later when he was called on the telephone and told that he was "on the spot," he reported both incidents to headquarters.

Sergt. Hodkinson arrested three men whom Rutledge named. They were held on investigation charges and released when police could not locate the complainant. After a thorough search of the alleged shooting scene, detectives said that they were unable to find any evidence that shots had been fired.

Hodkinson said Rutledge blamed the attempt on his life to liquor difficulties.

Fredericksburg Official Is Engaged to Miss Mary Enders.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 27.—Of unusual interest to society of Maryland and Virginia is the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Mary Phoebe Enders, daughter of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther Enders and Mrs. Enders, of Baltimore, to Mayor Jere M. H. Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin P. Willis, of Princess Anne street.

Although no date has been named for the ceremony, the marriage probably will take place late in June. Both Miss Enders, who has been a member of the faculty of the State Teachers College here for the past five years, and Mayor Willis long have been prominent in Fredericksburg society.

The bride-elect, a native of Catonsville, Md., is a graduate of Sargent's School of Physical Education and later received her degree from the State Teachers College here. Her father is pastor of the First English Lutheran Church of Baltimore. Mayor Willis was graduated from the University of Richmond in 1918 and received his law degree in 1921 from the University of Virginia. For the past ten years he has been associated with his father in the law firm of Willis & Willis.

RESOLUTION LAUDS WOMEN FACING SUIT

Reading of $60,000 Action Before Voters Greeted by Applause.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Applause greeted the reading of the Arlington Investment Corporation's request for motion for $60,000 judgment against members of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County at a meeting of the women yesterday. More than 125 members attended the session in the Ashton Heights Women's Clubhouse with the president, Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, presiding.

The motion is the result of the women voter's charges against Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, manager of the investment corporation, which claims it was damaged by the allegations.

After the reading, the following resolution, offered by Mrs. Jessie Roberts, was adopted:

"That this organization indorses each and every act done by the committee and the members thereof in the performance of the duties imposed upon them by this organization and further indorses any and all actions taken by the members of the committee in protecting themselves and this organization from any litigation brought against the organization or the members of its committee."

The suit names Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, Mrs. Mary C. Williams, Mrs. Florence E. Cannon, Mrs. Bertha S. Kelly, Mrs. Ada H. Davidson, Mrs. Alice W. Semones and Mrs. Jessie W. Hunt, appointed by the women voters' organization to represent it in proceedings last June against Hedrick.

The secretary was instructed to write letters to the United States Civil Service Commission and President Hoover expressing appreciation for the recent ruling permitting Federal employes to take an active part in local politics and to run for local offices.

A surprise party will be given the evening of June 15 at the Army-Navy Country Club in Arlington County.

A special meeting will be held in July to hear candidates for the State Senate and House of Delegates who are subject to the Democratic primary and the County Republican convention.

County Chairman J. E. Spaulding stated last night that neither he nor any of the county Republican committee played any part in the action brought by the Arlington Investment Corporation against several members of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County.

The county zoning appeal board will hold a special public meeting tonight at the courthouse. According to J. Hammond Brewer, jr., chairman of the board, the meeting will consider an appeal filed with the board by Charles Puglisi, through Attorney Thomas W. Phillips, from a decision of Directing Engineer C. L. Kinnier, in connection with an application for permission to construct a residence addition to his store building in Livingstone Heights.

Grounds for the appeal, as filed by Attorney Phillips, are:

1. That circumstances surrounding the proposed construction constitute a special exception to terms of the ordinance of such a nature that the permit should be granted.

2. That the circumstances also constitute a specific case where a variance from terms of the ordinance will not be contrary to the public interest and that a literal enforcement of the provisions of the ordinance will result in unnecessary hardship.

3. That the permit applied for is within the spirit of the ordinance and consistent with substantial justice.

James W. Head, of Barcroft, last night at a meeting of the Arlington Citizens Association announced his candidacy for membership on the county board to be selected at the November election.

Head said he would announce his platform later. However, he said he favored immediate acquisition of rights of way for a complete road system and the holding of night meetings of the board.

Head, a resident of Arlington County for 25 years, is chairman of the county public utilities commission.

The association voted to sponsor the local beautification contest proposed by the county bicentennial council. The following committee was appointed to have charge of the contest and to act as judges: Mrs. J. B. Lowell, chairman; William Griffith, Mrs. H. G. Freiwald, Frank Bailey and J. J. Coakley.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will meet this noon at Windsor Arms, Glebe road.

With a record attendance the annual spring flower show under auspices of the Arlington County, Barcroft and Neighborhood Garden Clubs in Clarendon closed last night.

Class B Airport Assured Manassas

Plans Completed to Purchase 94-Acre Site 2 Miles Out of Town.

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., May 27.—A Class B airport was assured Manassas with the completion last night of plans for the purchase of 94 acres of land about 2 miles outside the city on State highway 709.

Mayor Harry P. Davis, who headed a committee which has been studying the problem for several months, told a called meeting that the site had been selected after a study in which he was assisted by A. H. Pettigrew, of the Virginia Department of Highways.

The field, to be prepared under specifications for State airports, approved by the Department of Commerce, will not be used for commercial purposes, but merely as an emergency landing field. Funds for purchase of the property will be put up by a group of local citizens, who will take deed to it, and then execute a 5-year lease with the town, which will maintain the field. The town reserves the right to purchase the field.

WARRANT IS SWORN IN SLAYING OF WIFE

Burdett Man Is Charged With Murder; Children Tell of Shooting.

A warrant charging murder was sworn out yesterday for John F. Reffit, 50 years old, who shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Beulah Reffit, 35 years old, Tuesday night at their home in Burdette, Md., while five children looked on.

The killing of the wife was believed to be an accident by Montgomery County police. According to the police, the man had aimed the pistol at his own head and the wife was shot while attempting to wrest the weapon from his hand. The testimony of the children tallied with that of the father, who thrice attempted suicide after the shooting, only to be foiled by his 16-year-old son, B. Lloyd Raffit.

The warrant was sworn out by Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley on instructions from State's Attorney Stedman Prescott. The date of the preliminary hearing in Rockville Police Court before Judge Charles W. Woodward was not set yesterday. Raffit is being held in the county jail at Rockville without bail pending the hearing.

Suits Reveal Troubles.

This is the story told reporters by Montgomery County police:

The Reffits' marital troubles came to public light in February, when the husband filed suit for $50,000 damages, alleging alienation of affections by Delaney F. Brown, resident of the same neighborhood, and also filed suit for divorce, alleging infidelity and naming Brown as corespondent. The wife at that time returned to her parents, but later the couple patched up their differences and returned to the same roof.

The husband denied that the quarrel had anything to do with Brown, and that the latter had not been seeing his wife. He said that his wife had threatened to go see a woman who had been telling him things about her, and that this led to the quarrel. He went out of the kitchen, where the quarrel took place, and returned with the pistol. Pointing it at his head, he said, "I'll end all this." The wife grabbed for the pistol and in the scuffle it was discharged, the bullet entering her heart.

The husband then tried to shoot himself, but the son intervened and took the pistol from his father's grasp. The father then went upstairs and procuring a shotgun, again attempted suicide, but was foiled by the son. A third attempt with butcher knife also was frustrated by the youth.

Wife Collapses in Hall.

The wife managed to stagger nearly 40 feet to a small hall outside the kitchen where she collapsed. "Do you love me?" she whispered to 13-year-old Margaret Reffit, as she slipped to the floor. "Be a good girl." The girl attempted to staunch her mother's wound, and for more than an hour that it took Chief of Police Moxley to reach the scene of the shooting, sat crouched by her mother, with her hand over the wound. When the policeman arrived, she was with great difficulty persuaded to leave her mother. "I can't get up," she said "My mother would bleed to death."

Her ministrations were in vain, however, as the mother had died almost at the instant she touched the floor, doctors said.

Corporal Roy Bodmer, of the county police, arrived a few minutes after Chief Moxley and took Reffit to the county jail, where he is being held while police investigate the shooting.

Police questioned the five children, Margaret, 13; John Floyd, 14; Harold, 11; Paul, 7, and Lloyd, and their stories agreed with that told by their father.

Reffit, who is a huckster, is Republican officer of registration for the Clarksburg district. Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Reffit was Miss Hawkins, of near Damascus. A second daughter, Mary Reffit, 17 years old, is working in Washington.

HEAT TURNS SCORES TO WOODLAND BEACH

Summer Sun Starts Rush to Office of The Post in Haven Offer.

Yesterday's midsummer sun sent scores of Capital residents hurrying into the office of The Washington Post to learn details of The Post's Woodland Beach development which offers them an opportunity to purchase a lot on the South River in Maryland, where they may erect a haven far away from the torrid atmosphere of paved streets.

It was the first real summer day in some time and it brought directly home to many who had delayed visiting The Post the thought that hot summer is just around the corner. Realizing this, a good number made it a point to drop in at The Post, select a lot at Woodland Beach and then depart for home to make plans for a summer place in this delightful spot.

Thoughts of idling away the hours in a boat drifting along South River, of spending a long summer day with a fishing pole in hand or donning a bathing suit to cool off when high temperatures become the rule rather than the exception are enough to make any one look for a cool, enticing retreat and Woodland Beach offers just that.

It is not too far from Washington to make overnight commuting a hardship, for it is only 32 miles from the Capital by motor. Woodland Beach can be reached by taking the Defense highway toward Annapolis, turning right at Camp Parole to Maryland State highway No. 2 across the South River bridge and then left on Mayo road to the Beach. Persons traveling by W. B. & A traction cars should ride to Camp Parole. On Sundays, Post buses meet all cars at Camp Parole, transporting visitors to and from the beach.

Woodland Beach has many natural advantages which have appealed to hundreds who have visited the site and have heard about it during visits to The Post. But the chief advantage in the minds of most of those interested is the price.

All lots at the beach are $93 each, a price within reach of the most moderate pocketbook. And better still, the buyer does not have to put the $93 on the counter before obtaining his or her lot. The first requisite in a purchase is a subscription to The Washington Post. Then a down payment of $9 permits selection of your location and the remaining $84 may be paid in monthly installments of $3.50 each.

If you'd like to spend a pleasant summer by the water and yet within reach of shade trees, in a community composed of friends, Woodland Beach is the development for which you've been looking. Drop in at The Post today and learn all about it.

Airplane Wind Tunnel Tested at Langley Field

Langley Field, Va., May 27 (A.P.).—A giant wind tunnel and a half mile seaplane towing channel, each the largest in the world, were officially placed in operation today by the national advisory committee for aeronautics at its sixth annual aircraft engineering research conference.

Representing a cost of more than $1,000,000, the two aids to aeronautical research are to be used in studies for furthering the development of safety and efficiency in aircraft construction and operation.

U. S. MAYORS IN ROW OVER TRIP IN FRANCE

suggested that a different chairman be named by the party each day.

Others in the party, however, expressed a desire "to settle this thing right here in the Town Hall."

Baker urged the mayors to be quiet, saying it was unbecoming to start a dispute in the presence of the dignified mayor of the Paris municipal council, Count Jean de Castellane and Marshal Lyautey.

There was some heated comment and the matter was passed over until the mayors went into secret session at Claridges. They chose a committee to govern the remainder of the tour. New speakers will be named daily.

The five chosen on the committee were Henri Prince, representing New York; Mayor Baker, Mayor Hoan, Mayor J. B. Bright, of Richmond, and Mayor S. Walmsley, of New Orleans.

The mayors participated in various ceremonies today, featured by the placing of three wreaths on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. One was from the Portland Post, of the American Legion; one from the mayors' party and one in behalf of the war mothers visiting France.

Mayor Baker made the presentation speeches and Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Brice B. Smith placed the wreaths on the tomb. Later the party went to the town hall as guests of the municipal council.

Mrs. A. P. Gray, of Pasco, Wash., presented the City Hall with a picture of Mount Rainier in behalf of the pioneers of the State of Washington.

Paris, May 27 (U.P.).—Mayor James L. Key, of Atlanta, who has been suffering from stomach troubles, left the American Hospital today "to see Paris." The mayor was much improved and hoped to rejoin the touring American mayors for the remainder of their trip through France.

"Vigilantes" Stone Speakeasies.

Susanville, Calif., May 27 (A.P.).—Unidentified persons styling themselves "vigilantes" threw bricks today through the windows of several reputed bootlegging establishments.

Clutch Part of Ignition, Woman Avers in Test

Evanston, Ill., May 27 (A.P.).—There was an expression of pain on the face of Frank Kremly, of the Bureau of Accident Prevention, yesterday.

The cause was the answer given by one of more than 300 women who took a written examination on the theory of automobile driving, which is expected to qualify them as either front or back seat drivers.

"What are the major parts of the ignition system?" was the question.

"The choke, the speedometer, heat, oil gauge, gas gauge, lights, starter, accelerator, clutch and the brake," was one answer.

CROWLEY ASSAILED, DEFENDED IN TRIAL

Counsel for Gunman Holds Head Injury to Blame for Low Mentality.

Mineola, N. Y., May 27 (A.P.).—Francis Crowley, slender, 100-pound gunman "with the mind of a 10-year-old" was denounced and defended in the country courtroom here today as, with jury chosen, he went on trial for his life.

His companion in the parked automobile on the night three weeks ago when he shot Policeman Frederick Hirsch to death, sat in the front row, ready to provide damaging testimony against him.

This witness, 16-year-old Helen Walsh, was called a "gun-moll" by District Attorney Edwards as he outlined what the State hopes to prove. She has been in the custody of a matron since she, with Crowley and another killer, Rudolph Duringer—who also went on trial today in a Bronx court for slaying a taxi-dancer—were arrested.

Crowley's counsel, former District Attorney Charles R. Weeks, described the gunman as under-developed mentally because of an injury to his head in a fall when a child.

District Attorney Edwards scored Crowley as a ruthless killer and said Patrolman Hirsch was shot down without having any chance to defend himself.

TEN-DAY WAIT SEEN FOR ELECTRIC ORDER

ing two questions stand as fundamental.

The first is the question of authority of the utilities body to modify the sliding scale without consulting the court which promulgated the consent decree.

The second is whether the facts and evidence submited justify such a modification.

As to the last, the commission has previously stated that it considers the rate of return of the Potomac Electric Power Co. unreasonable and that it believes the public is not getting a fair share of the excess profits. No evidence was offered at the hearing to convince the commissioners that they were wrong, and an abundance of facts and speculations was submitted to strengthen their contention.

There is not so much confidence about the first question although in this instance also the commission is strongly upheld as to its authority by its own counsel and People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech. The issue really goes deeper than merely a question of electric rates; its outcome will determine whether the commission has actual rate-making powers or whether it is merely a rubber-stamp body under the court agreement.

Holds Utilities Body Bound.

Much of the argument revolved around this question yesterday. S. Russell Bowen, general counsel for the power company, cited numerous court decisions to back up his contention that the commission is bound by the consent decree and is without authority to alter the sliding scale on its own initiative.

He likewise denied the contention of opposing counsel that the rate of return of the power company is unreasonable just because it is more than a fair return.

People's Counsel Keech in his argument dealt chiefly with the authority of the utilities body in the matter. He stanchly contended that section 18 of the public utilities act gives it clear authority to control rate making despite the consent decree. Several court decisions, among them cases by the Supreme Court, were cited as evidence that rate making is a police power.

Depression Has No Effect.

The present prosperous condition of the power company in the face of a country-wide depression was pointed out by Mr. Roberts in his address to the commission. He recalled that the company's revenues have increased yearly under the present sliding scale despite periodical reductions in rates and dwelt at length on the security of its operation as a utility monopoly.

William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, in a brief talk told the commission that he believed the rate of return of the power company is too high and that he favored reduction by a compromise method if possible, but if not by direction of the utilities body.

The hearing concluded in somewhat of a jovial wrangle with Commissioner Harleigh H. Hartman, Mr. Roberts and Mr. Keech firing questions at Mr. Bowen at the conclusion of his rebuttal argument.

Divorce Is Indicated For Justice Assistant

In a finding of facts which he signed yesterday, Justice Jesse Adkins indicated that he would grant to Mrs. Maria S. Marcum, wife of Phillip F. Marcum, a special assistant to the United States Attorney General, a limited divorce on the grounds of desertion. Alimony of $135 a month is to be paid to the wife.

Marcum, who is a former assistant district attorney of Texas, and also a former Army officer, notified his wife in April, 1928, that he was leaving her, and took with him all his belongings, it was said. The findings of fact rules that the desertion was made without just cause. Mr. Marcum has been with the Department of Justice since January, 1923, except for a brief period.

Annulment Is Sought For Virginia Marriage

An annulment to her marriage to Charles Albert Barrick was started yesterday by Mrs. Helen Parrell Barrick on the ground that he had obtained a divorce from his first wife in Virginia February 1, 1927, and had married her a month later, contrary to the Virginia statutes.

Mrs. Barrick said she left her husband last April 3, 1931. They have one child.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

The great Lord Tennyson in a beautiful poem refers to a woman's Adam's Apple as "The warm white apple of her throat." Consider your Adam's Apple. Touch it—your Adam's Apple—That is your larynx—your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Protect the delicate tissues within your throat. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants! Reach for a LUCKY instead. Here in America LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette which brings you the added benefit of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process, which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays. It is this exclusive process that expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

DANGER IN LANDING BALLOON IS STUDIED

Descent Would Be Risky in Any Event, Declare Berlin Experts.

Berlin, May 27 (A.P.)—The problem of how Prof. Auguste Piccard would land his "stratosphere" balloon if he were still alive absorbed experts' attention here tonight as the news came that the balloon was drifting above the southern Alps.

Experts consulted by the newspaper Boersen Courier were of the opinion that the task of landing would be extremely difficult and accompanied by very grave danger.

Prof. Piccard might open the valve and let out gas, it was explained, but this would be very risky, in view of the fact that the balloon's gas capacity is so small that at the critical point of descent—about 16,000 feet—there would be danger of plunging down too rapidly if gas were released.

Only Minimum of Ballast.

This anticipated swift down plunge, it was said, could not be counteracted by throwing out ballast, as is usually done, because the balloon carried only a minimum of ballast.

The only other possibility for a landing, it was said, was to let the balloon sink by itself, which it might be expected to do when the night air coled off the gas, enabling the occupants to conserve their ballast until they were relatively near the ground and to use it all to prevent a too speedy landing.

The experts expressed the gravest fear that the prolonged delay of the descent might be due to a break in the airtight aluminum cage, made at the start of the flight, which might have caused a leak which would result in the unconsciousness and death of the two scientists in the heights to which they attained.

Purely Scientific Purpose.

Prof. Piccard's trip had a purely scientific purpose. It was planned to obtain data on the origin of the cosmic rays and the professor had carried on a long preliminary correspondence with Dr. Albert Einstein, exchanging views, during the period of preparation.

Early editions of all Berlin morning papers expressed grave doubts about the fate of Prof. Piccard and Kipfer. Although a few papers left their safety still an open question, most of them expressed the opinion that the balloon is drifting without a pilot.

The fact that the baloon has not yet apparently attempted to land was taken as the strongest indication that the occupants were not alive.

Army Planes Off Today for Capital

Air Armada Movse Down Coast of New Jersey Without Casualty.

Mitchell Field, N. Y., May 27 (A.P.).—The mass movement of Army airplanes through the skies, begun last week at Dayton, Ohio, was continued today along the New Jersey coast, and back to their New York base again without casualty and again with perfect precision.

There was one forced landing, but so speedily was the faulty motor repaired and the plane returned to the air it was able to land with the rest of the unit on time.

None too favorable weather conditions have prevailed for previous maneuvers, but today was ideal. Pilots said that a red and black Lockheed-Circus ship with retractable landing gear fell in with the column south of Trentono and flew alongside for sometime. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has the only known plane of that description in the East.

Tomorrow the planes, moving as the first provisional air division of the United States Army, will leave the New York area for Washington, flying over Philadelphia.

Insurance Deaths Charged to Widow

Men Whose Policies Name Her as Beneficiary Add to Evidence.

Chicago, May 27 (A.P.).—Men whose life insurance policies make Mrs. Margaret Summers the beneficiary added their testimony today to the post mortem evidence given yesterday against the woman accused of poisoning four members of her household. Her husband, her nephew, two brothers and two boarders, all have died within three years—four of them victims of poisoning; the other two of a cause yet undetermined.

Samuel Strauss, who drives a cab owned by Mrs. Summers and lodges at her home, was found ill today. He, too, has signed a policy that would bring her money at his death.

Others still living and insured in the widow's favor are Mrs. Margaret Ritty, daughter of Mrs. Summers by adoption without legal process, and Mrs. Ritty's three children, all insured for $500 each. The nineteen policies discovered by investigators totaled $9,028, of which Mrs. Summers has already realized $6,700.

Selection of Pantages Jury May End Tonight

San Diego, Calif., May 27 (A.P.).—The trial of Alexander Pantages, wealthy showman, and three codefendants on conspiracy and morals charges, dragged through the third day with prospects that a jury would not be completed before tomorrow night.

Accused with pantages are Jesse H. Shreve, San Diego business man, and William Jobelmann and Olive Clark Day, alleged operators of the Hollywood "girl market." The State alleges the millionaire conspired with the alleged market operators to bring 17-year-old Lydia Nitto to a hotel party here last October.

The locomotives are to be used when electrification of the railroad's lines between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington is completed.

Beach Pajamas in High School Class Allowed

Oakland, Calif., May 27 (A.P.).—Reversing a ruling of last week Principal Harold H. Cousins of the Roosevelt High School said today girls may attend classes in beach pajamas if they desire.

"There is nothing wrong in the fad and I make this announcement on my own initiative," Cousins said. "Lounging pajamas, however, will not be permitted."

Several girl students threatened to strike last week if not permitted to wear pajamas at school.

REPORT DUE TODAY ON HORTON OUSTER

Tennessee Committee Will Recommend on Governor's Impeachment.

Nashville, Tenn., May 27 (A.P.).—A legislative committee will report to the House of Representatives tomorrow whether impeachment proceedings are warranted against Gov. Henry H. Horton. Decision on impeachment then will rest with the House.

A committee appointed in the lower house of the General Assembly by Speaker Walter M. Haynes to study the report of another legislative committee that investigated the State's affairs was authorized to decide if a movement to impeach the chief executive was justified. Instructions specified that decision be made by Thursday.

Meanwhile, Col. Luke Lea, Nashville newspaper publisher and politician, whose association with the governor was a factor in the impeachment movement, was denounced on the Senate floor today by Senator Hal Clements, an East Tennessee Republican, as "the greatest enemy Tennessee has ever known."

Senator Clements likewise criticized Gov. Horton's association with Rogers Caldwell, president of Caldwell & Co., Nashville investment banking house, that failed last fall and precipitated the closing of several other banks in Tennessee with State deposits amounting to approximately $7,000,000.

If an impeachment recommendation is made—and both sides believe it will be—the committee of five house members will draw up articles of impeachment "as speedily as possible."

Coast Guard Fleet Averts "Capture"

Washington and 3 Other Cities "Saved" When "Enemy" Is Caught.

Norfolk, Va., May 27 (A.P.).—A tiny fleet of Coast Guard patrol boats saved Norfolk, Washington, Baltimore and Richmond from "capture" by a hostile fleet of destroyers and cruisers today, when they discovered the "enemy" attempting to sneak into Hampton Roads and Chesapeake Bay under a heavy blanket of smoke.

The destroyers threw out the smoke screen, in the hope the little fleet of Coast Guard craft would not recognize them as sea fighters. The "enemy," however, was discovered in time and the big guns at Fort Monroe and Fort Story blazed away at them, in theory, and they were driven back to sea with heavy losses. In fact, at least three of the twelve vessels were so badly crippled that they were no longer useful as fighters, according to the simulated score of the official scorekeepers.

That was the second round of the "war" being fought by the naval forces on one side, and the Coast Guard and the forces of Fort Story and Fort Monroe on the other.

U. S. War Flier Starts Pacific Hop Tomorrow

Tokyo, May 27 (A.P.).—Weather conditions permitting, Thomas Ash, jr., American war-time aviator, will hop off from Samushiro Beach, Hondo Island, at 7 a. m., Saturday (5 p. m., Eastern standard time, Friday) on his projected 4,400-mile nonstop flight over the Pacific Ocean to Tacoma, Wash. He hopes to reach his destination in around 44 hours.

Some time Friday Ash will make the 380-mile hop from Tachikawa Airdrome, near here, to Samushiro Beach, where the longest over-water nonstop flight in aviation history will start the following morning. It was from this beach and in the same plane that Harold Bromley and Harold Gatty made an unsuccessful attempt last year to span the Pacific.

POST'S FLAG TEST GIVEN HIGH PRAISE

John Q. Slye, of U. S. Secret Service, Lauds Plan and Sends In Design.

A very interesting letter has been received from John Q. Slye, of the United States Secret Service, describing the design which he has submitted in the contest being conducted by The Washington Post in an effort to secure a suitable design to be adopted for the flag for the District of Columbia.

To quite in part: "There are many Washington Monuments in the various cities, also any number of flags, State and otherwise, showing a coat-of arms of sorts. There is but one Capitol and one "dome," and in my travels in Europe, Alaska, South America, the picture of the Capitol at Washington, D. C., is apparently very well known by men, women and children. Mr. Slye submitted a design of the Capitol dome, surrounded by a circle of 48 stars on a background of 13 red and white stripes.

Mr. Slye further states, "The flag signifies that Washington is the center of activity of the whole Nation and the Capitol is thus surrounded and protected by the whole true blue United States. How any one outside of Washington, D. C., itself could possibly associate a coat-of-arms, a monument or a public building with the Capitol of the United States—the District of Columbia—is almost beyond my understanding * * * Irrespective of who wins I consider this contest about the best that has ever been inaugurated by any newspaper anywhere."

And so it goes—very definite preferences having been expressed and sound reasons advanced for the use of the Capitol dome, the Washington Monument, the seal for the District of Columbia, or a picture of George Washington as the center design for the flag to be adopted by the judges as the official emblem for the District of Columbia.

The contest will be closing shortly, so send in your pen and ink sketches of a design you would like to have represent the City of Washington. A prize of $25 is being offered by The Post for the design so selected. Address drawings to the Flag Contest Editor of The Washington Post.

Russian Blames Wheat Parley Failure on U. S.

London, May 27 (A.P.).—Blame for the failure of the international wheat conference held here last week to achieve anything substantial was thrown on the United States delegation in a statement issued today by Abraham Kissin, a member of the Soviet delegation to the conference.

The Russian representative said the special position assumed by the United States delegation in refusing to participate in an international agreement for regulation of the grain market and in suggesting a reduction of the area under cultivation made impossible any agreement upon a scheme for market regulation.

Europeans Plan Welcome For Envoys of Friendship

Col. Moss, Returned From London and Paris, Says Children's Visit Is Regarded as Favorable Pledge of Amity.

American envoys of friendship will receive a hearty welcome when they reach Europe this summer on the trip sponsored by the United States Flag Association, according to Col. James S. Moss, U. S. A., retired, who has returned from London and Paris, where he went to arrange a reception for the American boys and girls.

Children to visit France and England, selected from different parts of the United States, will represent 20,000,000 boys and girls. They will sail on the French Line steamer France June 17. After spending 10 days in Paris and the same length of time in London, they will return to New York, arriving about July 25.

"The response I received in Paris and London was most gratifying," Col. Moss said yesterday. "I visited many persons of prominence in both places. The idea of creating a lasting world friendship by beginning with the children of today, in whose hands will be the government of tomorrow, appealed to every one.

"Our young American envoys of friendship will be heartily welcomed and royally entertained in both Paris and London. My conversations with men and women in England and France convinced me that the English and French are fed up on war and are only too glad to welcome any honest constructive undertaking that will help establish permanent peace among the nations of the world."

A DEMOCRAT WANTS PROTECTION.

While his colleagues are beating tocsins throughout the country to arouse the ire of the people against the Smoot-Hawley act, Representative William P. Connery, Democrat of Massachusetts, is conducting a fight before the Tariff Commission for higher duties on shoes. Like other good Democrats, Mr. Connery believes in tariff protection—for his own constituents. It is only when duties are granted to producers in other localities that the tariff becomes iniquitous.

The Democratic party has said a good deal about using the Tariff Commission to reduce the "exorbitant rates" of the 1930 tariff act. Yet the first major demand for higher protection comes from a State that is represented in Congress by two Democratic senators, and which recently elected a Democratic governor. The pleadings of politicians in behalf of the shoe industry are rather jarring to the smooth flow of Democratic oratory for freer trade. But the party will not be embarrassed. One of the first tricks a good Democrat learns is to sponsor high tariffs for industries in which his State is interested, while heaping anathema upon the protective system in general.

The plight of the shoe industry illustrates the absurdity of the Democratic argument that lower tariffs would mitigate the depression. A former worker in the shoe factories at Lynn, Mass., learned the industry thoroughly and has set up factories of his own in Czechoslovakia. By taking advantage of cheap labor there he is able to export shoes to the United States at almost $1 per pair less than the cost of labor on a similar pair of shoes in America. Shoe manufacturers in New England must spend $1 for the same labor that costs about 28 cents in Czechoslovakia. American machinery, designs and methods are used with efficiency comparable to American factories. But the workmen who operate those machines pay something like 45 cents per week in rent and can obtain meals at 10 cents each.

Duties on shoes, like those on nearly all other commodities, are based on foreign values. Those values are so low that a 20 per cent tariff amounts to only about 40 cents per pair on many shoes. Obviously that is not enough to equalize the cost of labor. Unless the American standard of wages is protected the shoe industry may suffer irreparable loss.

Can any of the Democrats who are so vehemently condemning the tariff act honestly and sincerely advocate lower duties on shoes? How do the insurgents reconcile their insidious attacks upon the tariff with their demands that wages be maintained? These quack economists are dumb when it comes to pointing out which tariff rates could be lowered to cure the depression. Prating of theory to the people, they quietly ignore actual conditions. So long as they dwell in the realms of idealism the tariff is a horrible nightmare. But when they come down to earth they find it quite advisable to seek protection for those products which mean bread and butter for their own constituents.

WHEAT AS STOCK FEED.

Feeding wheat to live stock is not a new thing in Kansas, where there has been an oversupply for some time, but Secretary Mohler, of the State board of agriculture, says that it was not until the American Royal awarded the grand champion carload prize to cattle that had been fitted on a wheat ration that interest was aroused this year. More recently it became known that one of the largest cattle feeders of the State was buying wheat in thousands of bushels for his herd, and widespread interest in methods and results has developed.

A survey made by the Kansas board in a previous year, when wheat was low and more than 4,000,000 bushels were used as feed, showed by reports from 50 counties that, pound for pound, wheat is superior to corn for fattening hogs. Even though fed whole the average gain per bushel of wheat was eleven pounds. Wheat is found to be superior to corn for feeding young animals and when mixed with corn, oats or bran is better than any single grain. For feeding cattle wheat has a very high value that is enhanced by a part ration of bran. Wheat is unsurpassed by any other grain for feeding fowls, especially for egg production.

Individual farmers, as is natural, differ considerably as to the value of wheat over corn for horses and hogs, and the advantages of various formulas for admixture with other grains, but there appears little divergence of opinion on the superiority of wheat as the ideal feed for poultry and dairy cows. There used to be a saying generally quoted that if not unprofitable it was wicked to feed wheat. But with the vast surplus in storage and with corn and wheat approximately the same price per bushel, no one need fear at present that wheat rations for live stock will deprive any one of his daily bread.

WOULD HIGHER RATES HELP?

Refusal of the Interstate Commerce Commission to initiate an investigation into the railroad rate situation is significant. The commission is well aware of the fact that the railroads are not earning a fair return upon their valuation. Under ordinary circumstances it would be the duty of the commission to raise rates so that further losses might be avoided. But the commission refuses to act on its own motion. Apparently its members believe that higher rates would not work to the advantage of the public nor the railroads.

The commission shrinks from the responsibility of trying to work out a schedule of rates that would enable the railroads to recoup their losses. If the carriers have some feasible plan in mind, they will have to work it out and formally present it to the commission. Refusal of the commission to take the lead seems to imply that it is skeptical as to the benefits to be derived from the proposed increase.

Testimony by Commissioner Joseph Eastman before the Senate interstate commerce committee last winter offers a key to the situation. A substantial increase in freight rates, he said, might be another blow to industrial conditions and might tend to retard recovery, so that in the long run the railroads would be worse off than they are now. Certainly the railroads could not profit by any action that would deepen the mire of depression.

One other factor which has come to the foreground is that most of the railroads' difficulties may be traced to the loss of passenger traffic. But the carriers are not proposing to increase passenger rates. That would only stimulate competition by buses, private automobiles, and airplanes. Many roads are making further reductions in their passenger fares in an attempt to win additional patronage. Competition is not so keen in the transportation of freight, but it is constantly growing. Higher freight rates are certain to give truck lines new impetus.

In view of the attitude of the Interstate Commerce Commission and of adverse public opinion, carriers might find it advisable to grapple with the problem again. Perhaps they could find a measure of relief in adjustment of a limited number of rates which are now abnormally low.

SENATOR BORAH IS RIGHT.

Senator Borah tries so hard to be consistent himself that his soul is grieved to see the Nation floundering in inconsistency. The Government, he says, refuses to recognize Soviet Russia, yet permits an enormous trade with that country. The people cry out against Communist propaganda, yet powerful magazines publish serially the views of dramatic figures in the Russian movement. Organized labor demands protection against Russian dumping, and capitalists thunder denunciations at Communist methods, but thousands of American engineers are selling their services to the Soviet, and business institutions are granting it credit to the extent of $200,000,000.

It must be admitted that the senator from Idaho has struck the nail on the head. The United States has officially remained aloof from the Soviet, refusing to associate with any nation that repudiates its debts and proclaims itself the enemy of all other organized governments. Yet this country sells more equipment to the Soviet than does any other. The United States has contributed more in technical skill, industrial organization and management to the five-year plan than all other countries, with the possible exception of Germany. If the Soviet industrial machine upsets the economic structure of the world, Americans will bear a large share of the blame.

The dumping of Soviet products in the United States has been comparatively small. Russia has done most of her cut-rate selling in other countries while purchasing most of her equipment here. This country has made it possible for the Communist dictatorship to make remarkable strides in the demoralization of the world market and the enslavement of the Russian people.

In the past other countries have borne the brunt of slave-labor competition, but there is no reason why that should remain so in the future. The United States may prove to be more vulnerable than any other country, because the standard of living is so much higher here. In some European countries that have not yet learned to produce on the quantity basis and whose living standards are low Soviet competition is not so acute. But in America it would threaten all the gains that have been made in living conditions during this century.

Senator Borah may talk nonsense when he speaks of welcoming the Communist regime into the commonwealth of nations, but he is on solid ground when he points out the inconsistency of condemning the Soviet on one hand and nourishing it on the other. American business must be burnt before it will stop playing with fire.

COMPULSORY WASTE.

Discussion of the antitrust laws will not down. Big business claims that the rigidity of restrictions forbidding trade agreements, so far from simply preventing combinations to increase prices, at times effectively precludes even the correction of wasteful duplication. It is plain to astute heads of American industry that the safeguards against the exactions of monopolistic control, provided by the Sherman act, will never be surrendered by Congress. These executives, however, are working to bring about a measure of flexibility in the nature of agreements that obviously are beneficial, not only to the companies concerned but to the public.

The recent vast expansion of the operations of the British Shell Oil Co. in the United States, its evident freedom from restrictions surrounding American corporations, and its capture of large contracts for supplying petroleum products to the Government, have brought home very sharply the necessity for study of the questions involved in the changed conditions encountered in business operations, even in the home markets. The demand for modification of severe restrictions, as they affected export trade and business operations of Americans abroad, was manifest some years ago.

The situation in the United States is calling forth sane and moderate suggestions from heads of important industries that are worthy of consideration. Oscar Sutro, vice president of the Standard Oil Co. of California, believes that a proviso should be added to the Sherman law exempting from its prohibitions such agreements as may be approved by the Federal Trade Commission as being reasonable and in the public interest. The commission, he points out, has passed upon thousands of trade practices that involve all phases of public interest, and could be counted upon to work in cooperation with business, while at the same time setting the limit of trade agreements.

"The difficulty with the Sherman law," Mr. Sutro finds, "is that in prohibiting monopoly it enforces wasteful competition. If the Government were not in business economic conditions would soon force industry to regulate itself on the same basis. It is a far cry from the elimination of useless plants, be they lumber mills, cement mills, gasoline stations, or other units of production and distribution, to absorption in a few hands. It is the difference between the elimination of useless waste and the creation of oppressive monopoly."

The Government today is actively engaged in trimming expenses, eliminating waste, and abandoning useless plants. A deaf ear can not in justice be turned to the plea of business that it be allowed the same privilege under the watchful eye of a Government agency that would shield the public interest.

Bob Lucas admits that the Republican elephant is suffering from rickets due to the diet of sawdust and molasses fed him by Charley Michelson. What might happen to the country if it were put on such a diet?

Dr. Charles G. Abbot thinks that there are some low forms of life on Mars. With that beginning it would be a snap for the Crusaders to prove that prohibition is practiced on the red planet.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., May 27.—The national foreign trade council now in session at New York emphasizes the important place that international commerce holds in the world. It embraces nearly all the important elements of agriculture, industry, transportation and finance. A surprisingly large number of the essentials of our daily life are of foreign production and our own goods are found in every corner of the globe.

The basis of all trade is an exchange of materials and services. The important function of the council is to discover and advise our merchants how and where such exchange most advantageously can be made.

It is only in the last twenty years that we have had a country-wide organization reinforced by extensive governmental agencies for the promotion of foreign trade. Our phenomenal success came from being informed concerning the needs of other people and being able to supply them in a satisfactory manner at satisfactory prices.

The permanent foundation for trade lies in service. So long as we benefit people with our goods we can expect to supply them. Since only 10 per cent of world population has reached the higher standards of consumption the opportunity for world progress through foreign trade is boundless.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

ET TU, CHICAGO!

From the Chicago Tribune.

Washington, D. C., planned as a model town, turns out to be one, but of the wrong kind. It is the Capital of the Union, the home of the Federal Government, the American exhibit before the diplomatic world, and it is racing against homicide records and displaying the criminal propensities of Main street in a new mining town. Washington is virtually nothing but government. That attracts and absorbs people. Government furnishes the social and economic life, the ambitions, heartburns, jealousies and motives. Everything is done by and for government.

Washington's problems are more simple than those of other cities. Its people are wards of government in a fashion peculiar to the District of Columbia. They are disfranchised and to that extent relieved of responsibility. A good deal of American government is hypocritical and naturally it comes to its head in the city which is mostly government. Hypocritical morality is not the origin of sound law or the source of respect for law. Nearly all the reformers in America have their headquarters within shouting distance of Capitol Hill. Members of Congress vote one way and try to live the other.

The Capital City was a mistake from the beginning. It was born in jealousies. The site was selected in a species of bribery. The Capitol was made a pawn to obtain to the assumption of national debts and create the credit of the United States. It was fair retribution that the government of the infant republic lived in the mud of an intolerable place for years. The location of the Capital was the only real danger the Union had in the Civil War because its only real danger was political and not military.

Washington is supposed to be isolated from evil influences and to be a cloister wherein the legislative and administrative mind can operate in pure wisdom. It too frequently proves to be isolated from everything except petty jealousy, bureau autocracy, pretentious morality and circus stunt legislation.

It is the home of the Volstead act, but not even Miami, Fla., has less use for that noble statute. When a seat of government inhabited almost entirely by persons on Government business has contempt for its own moral code, which in turn merits contempt, the cause of its lawlessness can be found close to the surface. Washington is becoming the country's best example of how a democracy should not try to govern itself.

Since Mr. Farrell says our worst experiences are behind us, an occasional apprehensive glance backward is not unnatural.

The current demonstration of efficiency precludes any criticism of our air force, but inventive genius might provide more chic flying togs. An aviator's flying rig is as snappy as a diving suit.

Speaking of prohibition reformers, John D., jr., closed 346 speakeasies in New York by tearing down buildings on the Radio City site.

Europe trails along eventually. It is taking up miniature golf.

Boys of the A. E. F. participated in the anniversary celebration for Joan of Arc at Rouen, where she was burned at the stake. We trust they didn't absent-mindedly start singing "Hot Time in the Old Town."

Will Durant's list of the ten greatest thinkers of the world starts with Confucius, born 552 B. C., "in an age of confusion." Again we have plenty of Confusionists, but no such leader.

The peace-time field forces of Uncle Sam, so far from soldiering on the job, complain they don't even get their Saturday half-holiday.

Aviation experts are journeying to Langley Field to see the new wind tunnel. Since Congress is not here to defend itself, kindly refrain from the obvious and invidious.

Conversely, how about a muffler rule for congressmen who stay in Washington and talk out of turn all the year around?

After digesting a mountain of statistics, the Cabinet issues a twenty-word statement on improved conditions. A perfect score for the economy program.

THE NEW DAY

Never a day without something of gladness,
Something to soften and sweeten the sadness;
Something to startle the eye or entrance it,
Never a day but a smile may enhance it,
Never a day that is just like its brother;
Always it's different in some way or other.
Comes a new bud into blossom, or maybe
A new tooth is found in the mouth of the baby;
Somebody leaves us or somebody tarries;
Some one goes visiting, somebody marries;
Some man invents a new trinket to sell us.
Somebody stops with a new jest to tell us.
When the day dawns there is no way of knowing
What joy is coming or what care is going.
What if above us the storm clouds may hover,
We may in trouble a new friend discover.
What if we wake to the same dreary duty,
The eye may find somewhere a new touch of beauty.
Never a day without something worth seeing,
Something worth doing and something worth being.
Even the oldest find something to live for,
Something to wait for and something to give for.
Always some new joy or problem arises,
Never a day dawns without some surprises.

A Bad Law Is Harmful Only While the Majority Thinks It a Good One.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

PEOPLE who try to fool you never do it for your good.

Always and everywhere, the invitation to accept a belief unsupported by facts or logic is an invitation to make yourself a victim.

Always the one who fails to see facts as they are suffers a penalty.

The jungle cat fooled by the protective coloration of a fawn is robbed of his dinner, and cattle fooled by the deceitful coloring of great cats are robbed of their lives.

As the truth makes men free, so also it makes them safe.

And since those who are fooled invariably are victimized, it should be obvious that the individual who suffers least and gets the most out of life is the realist.

The word "realism" has been much abused within recent years. Purveyors of ugliness have employed it to describe their wares and repeated it so often that it now serves as a synonym for sordidness.

But the lily is just as real as the muck in which it grows, and "realism" may be beautiful as often as it is ugly.

To be a realist is to see the simple facts, bad or good; and to cultivate the habit of seeing facts as they are is to avoid the sorrows and penalties endured by those who are gullible.

A certain business man discovered that his wife and daughter were giving considerable sums of money to a "medium" in whom they had unquestioning faith. He arranged for a seance in his home and asked a friend to sit near the cabinet from which the "spirits" issued. When the room was darkened and a ghostly form began to flutter in front of the cabinet, the friend turned on a flashlight. The departed spirit that floated so airily proved to be a startled and angry woman scantily clad in cheesecloth, and the wife and daughter were converted to realism. As realists they will have no faith in evidence that can't endure the light.

A wife fooled by vanity and self-pity feels cheated by fate because of her husband's growing indifference. Teach her to see facts as they are and she realizes that she is a selfish, fault-finding handicap and deserves even less than she gets. Sanely facing the truth enables her to salvage a home.

The realist escapes much of the misery endured by the vain, for he doesn't court disappointment by expecting a king's salute for a commoner.

He escapes rude awakenings by living in a land of facts instead of a dream world, and he escapes both loss and shame by recognizing a spade as a spade despite precedents, promises, threats and fear of the neighbors.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Majority Must Rule.

New York Herald Tribune.

It is an old maxim of the law that hard cases make bad law. How true the saying is was well illustrated in the case of Prof. Macintosh. Thanks to a courageous majority of the Supreme Court, bad law was not made. But the country escaped by a narrow margin to serious weakening of individual responsibility to itself.

The country will regret that these two excellent candidates have been rejected. It will be profoundly relieved that no weakening of the standard of citizenship has resulted from their application. No more important decision has been handed down in many months. Had the minority doctrine prevailed the whole conception of government by a majority would have been undermined.

They Have No Plan.

Northfield (Minn.) News.

There is something ironical in the fact that Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, is campaigning the farm belt reviling the Republicans on the subject of agricultural relief while at the same time John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, in New York is admitting the fact that the Democratic party has no farm program. Mr. Raskob said: "We must develop some scheme of farm relief that will redound to the benefit of our whole country."

Reasonable Doubt.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

Opportunity, says Chairman Shouse, is knocking at the Democratic door. There's a deal of knocking, it's true, but is Mr. Shouse sure that's Opportunity?

Keeping Congress Out of It.

Houston Post-Dispatch (Dem.).

President Hoover, in refusing to call a special session of Congress at this time to deal with the economic situation, is giving Senator La Follette and other insurgents something else to harp upon, but he is doing the country a service by keeping Congress in adjournment. "I know of nothing that would so disturb the healing process now going on in the economic situation as an extra session of Congress," the President is quoted as saying. He may have a clearer vision than many others if he is able to see a healing process in action, but he is surely justified in fearing that Congress would make things worse if charged with the responsibility of legislating the country out of the slump.

Defying the Mischief Makers.

Minneapolis Journal.

President Hoover steps on the extra session agitation with his definite announcement that there is not going to be any. This will doubtless displease the La Follettes, Brookharts and Borahs. But it is good news for the rest of us. And equally pleasing is Mr. Hoover's frankness in telling why.

Congressional activity, he believes—and so do nine tenths of informed Americans—would make the business situation worse, instead of better. And that's that.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Imperial Aggrandizement the Goal of European Statesmanship—America Can Not Abet This System.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Ramsay MacDonald confides to the world over the radio that no greater care oppresses the British prime minister than how to prevent revolution among "people just awakened to self-respect." How to effect their transition "from a relationship of tutelage" when grown "to full stature" and ready "to pass from the nursery—no longer obedient servants to our will." It is not a British Tory but a British Socialist holding this language.

Something could be done, it might be thought, by halting the familiar process, operating this moment in East Africa, as immemorially it has operated in India, of first forcing upon these peoples an abhorrent tutelage, drugging their self-respect to reawaken later in revolution, reducing them to the debased condition of obedient servants to British will.

Of one thing Mr. MacDonald admits no question: Whenever and wherever "we are responsible for the affairs of other races, the clock can never go back, nor even stand still. The extension of empires must be more and more" . . . and so on. Perhaps. But why set new clocks going in Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika, and hold another over Abyssinia in readiness to strike in due time? Weaker races, subjugated or to be subjugated, have no more to hope for except fine words from a Labor cabinet than from a Tory; from MacDonald than from Churchill, and here is the proof of it.

It pleases Mr. MacDonald to conclude: "We have shown that responsibility for different peoples on a different plane of civilization can be bonded in a spirit of trusteeship." The essence of trusteeship is, that the trustee may not take to himself a profit from his trust; all is for the beneficiary. Apply this to India and be polite enough to repress a smile.

The truth is, imperial aggrandizement, maintained by iron repression, and enhanced by unceasing new encroachments upon the helpless, is the polar star of European statesmanship. Acknowledged of none, it nevertheless delimits the course of every international conference. It is the unspoken predestinate ruin of every arms conference in particular. For us to continue to wink at it if we like, is one thing; to become its bounden abettors by putting our names to league covenants and court statutes conceived in its interest, is quite another.

Unfashionable to Talk of Saving Life and Limb—Rotary Turn Should Be Maintained.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Citizen F. W. W., writing in your issue of the 23d., is not the only one who wonders why the District Commissioners are going to discard the rotary for the Hoover left turn. In fact, most, of us are wondering. But since the District people have no voice in their own affairs the matter will be decided for them.

If citizen F. W. W. has followed the argument for adoption of the Hoover left turn in Washington (there is only one argument and therefore easy to follow) he will have discovered, as apparently he has, that it is simply because others are doing it and we must do what others do. It is getting to be victorian to talk about "sacrifice of life and limb." The individual is nothing these days. Collectivism is everything. It used to be thought that the life of a single person was more precious than all the sparrows in the world. But our habit now is to distinguish more carefully between practice and preachments.

As to instructions of tourists, lack of which your correspondent suggests, there is precious little of it. Some one made the remark once that it might not overtask the brain of the sort of tourist competent to tour, to remember that two cities in the country, Cleveland and Washington, employ the rotary turn. Only two to remember. Not hard. Perhaps the use of mnemonics might help. Both bear Presidents' names. The one was our first President. The other was our first Democratic President following the Civil War. Or a poster on the windshield, furnished by our otherwise enterprising automobile clubs to those on tour, might help.

DOMINIE JESTER.

Poor Kind of Individual Who Will Accept Protection of United States and Then Refuse to Defend It.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With the highest respect for the members of the Supreme Court who dissented from the opinion of the majority of the court in the MacIntosh-Bland citizenship case, I firmly believe that the man who undertakes to say how and when and under what circumstances he will defend the Nation of which he is asking to be made a citizen is not fit for citizenship in that nation.

Every man and woman is and should be protected in the right as an individual to say whether a cause is right or wrong—that a thing may be better done this than that way—but any person willing to accept the protection and the opportunities under the flag of a nation built on the sacrifice of millions of lives and billions of money, and then refuses to make the same sacrifice, is poor indeed—poor in every imaginable characteristic that must be in the character of a good citizen.

Did John Paul Jones say he would not defend this country? Did the Unknown Soldier? I know of no country in the world which would accept this man MacIntosh and this woman Bland as citizens. I say deport them if we can, and immediately.

Stimson Fete At Woodley Is Gay Affair

Summer Plans Are Chief Topic of Cenversation at Outdoor Party.

WORKING in delightful unison, the proverbial hospitality of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson and a smiling weather man created a garden fete yesterday at Woodley to the complete enjoyment of many hundreds of guests who responded to the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Stimson, hosts at their third outdoor party this spring. With Army Band music in the air, canopied marquees and scattered coffee tables dotting the lawns, and roses nodding from every corner of the garden, the affair surely heralded the definite arrival of summer.

After Capt. Eugene Regnier and Mr. Richard T. Southgate had welcomed the guests at the terrace they were presented to the Secretary and Mrs. Stimson by Mr. Charles Cooke. The Diplomatic Corps was well represented yesterday as well as the various chiefs and assistants of various departments, all seemingly happy of the opportunity to discuss summer plans or talk over contemplated journeys abroad as the annual exodus will soon begin, to the usual depletion of the "ranks."

Moving about, perhaps at a loss for acquaintances to talk to, were the members of the Argentine tennis team, who today will share with the Americans the spotlight of the sporting world at the Davis Cup matches at Chevy Chase Club.

The party, from one point of view, resolved itself into a charming fashion show. With Mrs. Stimson leading the way in the matter of lovely printed chiffon, one swift glance at the women moving across the lawns revealed the tenor of summer frocks. Mrs. Simson wore a becoming beige chiffon printed in soft rose with touches of green; she wore jade earrings and a light straw hat with an organdie flower matching the tones of her gown.

The majority of the women had chosen printed chiffon or silk, until one wondered if modern art and the fad for color combination had not contributed to the pageant of prints that featured the party. For everybody is doing it. Mrs. Charles Francis Adams in beige and brown print with sable scarf and brown hat; Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley looking lovely in a chiffon ensemble of beige and leaf red, the smart jacket edged with fur; Mrs. Thomas Gossett, the former Elizabeth Hughes, guest with her parents, the Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes; Mrs. Robert Hinckley, Miss Mabel Boardman, all in brown printed chiffons, and no two alike. Yellow came in for favor from several guests. Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr's dress of chiffon with yellow flowers set off with handsome black lace and a large hat of black maline; Mme. Debuchi, there with the Ambassador, very picturesque in yellow chiffon and Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Bloom also in the warm tones of brown or gold.

Although chiffon has its day yesterday's fete was proof positive of the revival of the engaging fashions of the mauve decade. For Mrs. James J. Davis' frock of white batiste with embroidery and tiny valenciennes, Senorita Maria Sacasa in pale pink embroidery with black taffeta jacket and picture hat, and several other crisp gowns of organdie revealed which way the styles are blowing.

Silks with definite patterns of flowers came in for their share of the picture. Countess Cornelia Szechenyi chose red and white with a smart hat of baku, Mme. Filipowicz in blue and white print with dark coat, Mrs. William R. Castle, jr., Mrs. J. Charles Linthicum, Mlle. Maelli Praffili, Miss Mary and Miss Anne Randolph and hosts of others added to the alluring stream of figured gowns passing in review. Just back from Europe was Mrs. Hiram Bingham; the Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes were there, as were Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, the Minister of Greece, the Ambassador of Great Britain, the Military Attache of Cuba and Senora de Prieto. The Second Secretary of the Turkish Embassy, Mr. Ussaki Bulent, returned from a visit in New York just to attend the fete, and hosts of others from diplomatic and official Washington lingered in the flower bordered gardens for tea.

Count Francois de Buisseret, who came to this country with Prince Charles of the Belgians, is now attached as second secretary to the embassy. He was accompanied to this country by his sister, Countess Beatrice de Buisseret, who will remain here while her brother is attached to the embassy. MERCHANT ships at sea now are calling regularly for the first-aid advice which the Public Health Service furnishes them by radio in emergency cases of accidents or sickness aboard.

About 1,100 victims of accidents and illnesses aboard ships which did not carry doctors have received treatment rendered according to directions radioed by the service since the inauguration of the system. Doubtless some lives have been saved in this manner.

The Public Health Service today is in a position to give medical advice by radio to ships anywhere in Atlantic or Pacific waters, or in any other waters within the range of wireless communication.

Captains of vessels plying routes through almost any of the waters surrounding North America have become more familiar with the emergency advice system of the service, and are realizing more and more the value of it. Many freight ships do not carry doctors, and therefore, if it were not for the Public Health Service wireless advice, injured seamen, or even, in some cases, passengers, would have to be treated according only to the simple first-aid methods known to laymen.

NEW theories of the earth's origin and its future course will be expounded by Sir James H. Jeans, eminent British astronomer over a WJZ network tonight. Sir James will speak on "The Modern Theories of the Universe" before a noted assembly of American scientists at a dinner in his honor, Michael Pupin, of Columbia University, will serve as toastmaster. The program will be on the air from 9 to 9:30 p. m.

A series of interviews with radio celebrities, to be known as "Meet the Artist" will be broadcast every Thursday (WMAL, 4:45 p. m.), beginning today. Morton Downey, tenor, will be the guest on the premiere broadcast. He will be interviewed by Bob Tapliner, CBS writer, who will conduct the feature each week.

Among those who will grace subsequent programs are Guy Lombardo, Frank Crummit and Julia Sanderson, Dennis King, Ann Leaf, Irene Bordoni, Ted Husing, Ben Alley, Tony Wons, Kate Smith, Howard Barlow and many others.

HAVING successfully inaugurated the two feature piano-playing broadcasts, "Music in the Air" and "Keys to Happiness," E. C. Mills, NBC executive, has gone to the Pacific Coast to arrange a similar piano-playing series in the Western States.

The schedule of Daddy and Rollo programs, formerly broadcast every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 6:45 p. m. over WMAL, will be changed after the broadcast tonight to Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p. m. The first broadcast on the new time schedule will be on Sunday.

An all-Wagnerian program, both in drama and music, will distinguish the Birthday Party tonight (WRC, 8:00 o'clock).

The track and field events of the fifty-fifth annual Intercollegiate A. A. A. championships at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, will be described by Ted Husing (WMAL, 2-4 p. m., tomorrow).

DURING a recent broadcast of the Empire Builders program from the NBC studios in Chicago, part of the presentation required thunder for a background. The production men on the roof were vigorously shaking a great sheet of tin, to get the desired effect, when nature lent a helping hand. A terrific thunder shower had appeared from nowhere, laughing at man's efforts.

The twice postponed sixth anniversary observance of the Tower Health Exercises, oldest daily feature on the NBC networks, will be held tomorrow morning.

Selection of the "hit tune of the week" for the daily morning broadcast of the Campbell's Orchestra program, is a real task. A special board of judges, selected from among NBC's musical authorities, sits in judgment each week over more than three dozen musical compositions. A staff pianist plays the tunes over several times, a vocalist croons them, the board takes a vote and agrees on one of the thirty-six compositions.

Later the orchestral scores are written and the "hit tune of the week" goes on the air, played by Andy Sannella and his musicians, and crooned by Lew Conrad, every day of the six Monday-to-Saturday broadcasts. Several of the selected melodies have become real hits.

Two new program series are scheduled for CBS. Will Osbourne and orchestra will be on the air weekly for six months, after June 1. The other is set for the middle of July, featuring Sam Lanin's Orchestra of 32 pieces, Theo Karle, tenor, and the Song Bird Quartet, with an outstanding name from the concert or operatic field as a special added attraction each week.

EVEN though the story that there was a political angle to the visit of Amos 'n' Andy to the fishing camp of Secretary Lawrence Richey has been denied flatly, it served to raise a storm of protest, especially among their Democratic followers, who beg that the boys keep free of any political alliance.

Jean Interprets the Mode

Soft summer ermine forms this chic sport coat with its interesting collar and cuffs. (Courtesy of the Maison Heim, Paris.)

New York, May 27.

I WONDER, now, to what lengths our new-found femininity will carry us? For, with the edict from Paris that the waist line will be accentuated and the bust higher and more emphasized, is it possible that the old, dreaded days of whalebone and agony will descend on us again?

I hardly think so. Women today have too much good sense to adopt such methods of attaining an end, however fashionable it may be. Tight corsetting is a menace to health as well as to comfort, and—although this may be a woman's reason—it isn't becoming, besides. There is always an awkward constraint of movement, a shortness of breath, when one is too tightly bound. It was no exaggeration in our grandmother's day, you know, for a lovely lady to be carried from a ballroom in a dead faint, and to continue unconscious until the nearest doctor seized his shining knife and brutally, ruthlessly, slashed open every one of the lacings that had literally squeezed the life out of her.

That does sound amusing nowadays, doesn't it? So amusing, in fact, that I know there is no thought in your pretty heads in this generation of permitting such awful things to happen to you. Yet, one must follow the fashion, and if the fashion says tiny waists and pronounced busts, so must it be.

So, let me tell you for your comfort, that Paris today can attain with a dart, tiny and unnoticeable and artfully placed, with lace and sheerest of silk, this very effect that, in the olden days had to be inflicted with whalebone and coutil, lacings and hooks. The waist is made smaller and the bust is raised and emphasized by this clever and comfortable restraint, and gracefully, too. One is able to bend over today easily, and does not have to stand by to watch with breaking heart one's best handkerchief whisking away in the breeze, with no gallant gentleman near for the rescue.

The Maison Heim sort of specializes in doing unique and interesting things with fur, but they never have achieved a more stunning result than the sport coat I have sketched for you today. It is of summer ermine, and beltless, and is altogether delightful with its waist of pelts joined horizontally and its skirt of vertical pelts. And for contrast, of course, the cuffs of the slightly puffed sleeves are vertical, too.

• • • •

Though we can't buy original Heim coats every day, we do find ourselves able to profit by some of the style notes incorporated in creations from this house. A coat of this kind in heavy gray or beige woolen material would have just thousands of uses at a summer resort, n'est-ce pas?

• • • •

Crystal does seem so very modernistic to me. So when Mamzelle wrote from Paris that she had seen a ring, and a belt buckle that matched the ring, both in a modernistic design of transparent and mat or "frosted crystal" as we call it in English, I told her to send me a rough sketch of them right away so that I could draw them for you. And I did, and they are right in the corner of today's sketch.

• • • •

So much stress is being placed this season upon accessories that I thought the thing for me to do was to give you directions for making smart ones as soon as I could. 'N' when I saw what a lot of accessories there were, I was sort of stumped—but after a little thinking I decided that the most important of them all is the pocketbook. So-o-o-o, I concentrated on bags, and when you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post you'll see what smart and unusual things I found out about them, and how easy it is to make 'em yourself—yes, one for every ensemble or frock in your wardrobe.

Only in the Sunday Washington Post, in the Capital, can you read Dare's weekly fashion letter. Look for it every Sunday.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

PLEASE tell me what to do with my primrose in the summer. I followed your advice about its care in winter and it surely repaid me.

MISS MABLE H. B.

I am glad your primrose did so well. Better plunge the pot in a place in your garden where it will have sun about four hours each day and keep it well watered. It is not apt to bloom much until the end of summer.

Please tell me how to rid my porch plants and even those in my garden of gnats. ALICE T. W.

Constant, daily spraying with cold water should soon rid your plants of gnats.

I have had the plant from which the inclosed leaf was taken for about eighteen years. Please tell me how to care for this plant. MRS. J. A.

Your aspidistra evidently requires repotting. Better make it a rule to transplant and divide it every second year. Also, when possible, keep the plant in the sun and water it every day, spraying the foliage twice each week.

Please tell me how to water my perennial garden. I have a border twenty feet long filled with about twenty varieties of perennials.

MRS. FRANK T. K.

Except in very warm climate during a prolonged dry spell it is preferable to keep plants in good condition by frequent cultivation. The main thing is to water the plants correctly when you do give them water. There are two right ways to water; one is to use a fine mist spray and allow it to play for hours; the other and next best way it to pour on water gently. In either case continue until the ground is throughly soaked. The best time to water plants is in the evening. One authority suggests that where you don't own a mist spray it is best to "remove the nozzle from the hose and let the water run gently around and among the plants, taking care not to wash the soil from the roots of the plants." In most places a good soaking once each week is sufficient. After watering be sure to get out your hoe and turn over the soil.

I am building a rock garden. Please tell me the best kind of stones to use. I will have to purchase them, but want really to know something about the kind I ought to have.

MRS. MARY G. D.

The best stones for any rock garden are flat limestone, porous sandstone or tufa, though boulders with one or two flat sides are well suited to such use. Always place the largest stones at the bottom and bury the largest side in the soil.

Please tell me if bearded irises are particular about the soil in which they grow. I am planting some for the first time this year.

MISS NATALIE D. P.

Bearded irises will grow in almost any soil, but they prefer a heavy clay soil. They must have full sun and good drainage.

Please tell me the proper size to make a dahlia tuber. I mean to divide roots very soon. ANN H. K.

Old clumps of dahlia tubers are divided in the spring after growth has begun sufficiently to distinguish the eyes. Sever the tubers with a sharp knife. Remember that growth is impossible except through the eyes. The right size tuber to plant is one with a single eye and a moderate-sized root or part of root.

YOUR NAME

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

THE personal and family name "Hermann" is found with great frequency throughout Germany and has been adopted in various forms in all the countries of Europe. Its source is the Teutonic "Hariman," which means "the warrior." Some of its commonest modern German variations are "Herman," "Harmen," "Haarmann," "Herrmann," "Hoermann" and "Horman."

In England the German name "Hermann" is generally found as "Harman," "Herman," "Hermon" and "Hermanson." A certain Nicholas Herman is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls, and a Ricardus Harman is mentioned in an English document of the year 1379. Considering the original Teutonic form "Hariman," one might expect that the English name "Harriman" belongs to this same group. Such is not the case, however.

In the early fourteenth century the English family name "Harman" was introduced into Ireland, where it spread rapidly and assumed such varied forms as "Harmon," "Hardman" and "Herdman." Furthermore, in that country many families who were originally called "O Hargadain" adopted "Harman" as its supposed equivalent. "O Hargadain means "the descendant of Argadan." The personal name "Argadan" is a diminutive form of "Airgead." "Airgead" may be translated "silver," "white" and "shining." Other Irish families have adopted "Harman" and "Harmon" as the supposed English equivalents of the Irish "Mac Giolla Deacair," which really means "the son of the hard youth."

The family name "Harriman" appears to be first recorded in the year 1632, although the forms "Henryman" and "Henriman" are found as much as three centuries earlier. When "-man" is added to an English personal name it generally means "the servant of." Therefore "Harriman" means "the servant of Harry." The personal name "Harry" has come into English through the French. It represents the English attempt to pronounce the French "Henri." The ultimate source of "Henri" is the Germanic "Heimrich," meaning "home ruler."

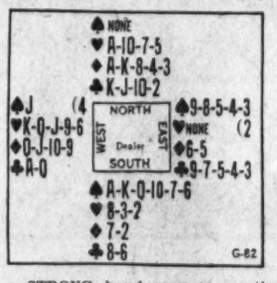
WORK ON BRIDGE

IT'S HARD GOING WHEN YOUR PARTNER HAS A YARBOROUGH.



A STRONG hand may go on the rocks when the partner holds no card higher than a Nine. Such a hand as known as a "Yarborough" because in Whist days a certain Lord Yarborough was in the habit (before the deal was completed) of offering to bet any or every player at the table £1,000 pounds to 1 that the player with whom the bet was made would have a card higher than a Nine in his hand. The mathematical odds are 1827 to 1.

The following hand would be bid in the same way at either Auction or Contract Bridge; South, two Spades, West three Hearts and North double. It was held recently at the Recreation Bridge Club in Detroit, and it will be noted that West's strong hand faces a most discouraging Yarborough. In addition to not having a card higher than a Nine, East was chicane in trumps.

The play was interesting. North led the King of Diamonds which won the trick, South playing the Seven and West false-carded the Queen without fooling North, who led the Ace of Diamonds on which South played the Deuce and West the Jack. A third Diamond from North was ruffed by South, who led the Queen of Spades, North discarding a small Club. South followed with the Ten of Spades, West ruffing with the Nine, and North over-ruffing. A fourth Diamond from North, ruffed by South, established North's thirteenth Diamond. The King of Spades from South, ruffed by West with an honor, was over-ruffed with North's Ace of Hearts. North now led his thirteenth Diamond, and South played his last trump (the Eight) so as to force West to win with an honor. West did so and led his good trump. North following and being left with the Seven of trumps and three Clubs. West could read the situation and therefore led a losing trump, putting North in the lead and compelling him to lead up to West's Ace-Queen of Clubs. West consequently made the last three tricks, but in spite of his good play he was dragged down four by his helpless, trumpless partner.

What Today Means to You

"GEMINI."

IF May 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to noon, from 3:45 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger hours are from 1 p. m. to 3:10 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 8:15 p. m.

May 28 holds out much promise of success, regardless of the field of endeavor in which you are engaged. The astrological indications are very stimulating, and will conduce to persistent and sustained effort. In the evening, the conditions will be overcast. Relaxation is recommended.

A child born on this May 28 is destined by fate to be a leader. Much care should, therefore, be exercised in order that it may lead in the right direction. It will dominate, not by strength, but by intellectual superiority. It will excel in anything and everything that it undertakes.

Born on May 28, you are cheerful, bright and optimistic. With it all, however, you suffer—without making others suffer—from frequent fits of depression and gloom. These chiefly arise from an unjustified sense of self-dissatisfaction. You always strive to attain very high ideals, both in work and conduct, and when the accomplishment falls short of the heights that you have pictured but failed to climb, in your mind, you feel like throwing up the sponge.

You are original and resourceful. You have a good business head. You are quick to see and grasp an opportunity. Where others fail, you frequently succeed. In spite of this, you never suffer from a swollen head, as the results attained by your efforts, although startling to others, are never fully in accordance with what you hoped to achieve. The stars denote that you will travel far.

In love affairs, you are inclined to be fickle and changeable. Here again, you are always seeking perfection. As time passes, you will realize that a perfect being would be boresome, and you will settle down with one whose very imperfections will charm and attract.

Successful people born May 28:

Morris Sheppart, United States senator.

Louis McLane, Secretary of Treasury under Jackson.

Daniel L. Braine, rear admiral.

Frederick Fraley, financier.

Albert G. Riddle, lawyer and author.

FRANCES M'DONALD

Forcing a Man's Hand.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I am 25 years old, and have gone with a man for a year, whom I think more of than any one on earth. After meeting him I lost interest as well as contact with most of my other male associates. We both know that the other has other friends, but I think they are only friends. I never tell him when I have other dates, but he always has told whenever he goes with any one else, even to the smallest details. He says that he would rather tell me than to have some one else tell me. I admire this very much.

I have more love, admiration and esteem for him than I have ever had for any one else. I think I care more for him than he does for me, although I have tried not to show this. I have occupied my mind by going to school at night just so I would not think too much about this whole affair.

We have considered getting married, but he says that he just could not get married now. He has just started in business for himself, which means that all his money will only go back into the business for a year or two. His business takes him away from the city; this means separation. I am willing to make the sacrifice that getting married would mean. He knows this but would not think of doing that as he feels that is no way to do. Now, should I insist on getting married or should I wait for him or just try to forget if I can? The latter would be very difficult. I could try, though.

Thanking you for your interest and advice. LONELY AND UNDECIDED.

Forcing a man's hand is always poor policy. Man is by nature the provider first, and all other things after that. He hates the thought of defaulting in man's particular field. He wants to provide. About one-half of all married difficulties start in this department. About one-half of all marriages start off on the wrong foot. And end in the ditch with both feet. Why? Well, the girl is tired of everything else and wants to get married. Whether the man is ready or not the girl wants to charge up to the altar and start something. She does. She starts a divorce on its way. The man blinded by love thinks that he would get farther in less time if he could put less thought on the girl and more on his business. And knowing that marriage accomplishes that trick, he rushes the girl altar-ward. She, expecting now to have his undivided attention, stages a small war when she finds the true situation to be the reverse. Another divorce. Always two people with exactly opposite ideas, trying to do team work. Failure, of course.

Now your young man seems to know what he is about. He is on the way to accomplishment in his own way. Why should you step in and stop him? You have known him a year. That is a comparatively short time. Certainly not long enough to justify either urgency or stringency. The man has made certain investments that must be protected. Such procedure precludes marriage for a certain time. If you force him to depart from his own carefully formulated program, he will be justified in feeling real resentment. And of all sentiments on which to found a marriage, it seems to me that resentment on the part of the bridegroom is about the worst! Bide your time. Encourage and inspire and in due time he will lay his hard-won laurels at your feet. In your place I would prefer that to life-long resentment.

Never force a man's hand!

CHURCHMEN AVOID BIRTH-CONTROL ROW

Issue Will Not Be Brought Up Before Presbyterian General Assembly.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 27 (A.P.).—The end, as far as this session is concerned, came tonight to a budding controversy over birth control in the Presbyterian general assembly when the special commission of marriage, divorce and birth control decided to eliminate a portion of its preliminary report dealing with the question.

The preliminary report recommended that the assembly, supreme judicatory of the church, convening here tomorrow, approve birth control when practiced because of maternal health or economic situations. The commission's action came after a storm of protest and criticism from members of the church and as a result the matter will not be presented to the assembly.

Little question remained tonight as to the election tomorrow of the Rev. Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, of Philadelphia, as moderator. Nine hundred and forty two commissioners are here for the sessions.

Further liberalization of the Presbyterian attitude concerning the status of women in the church is expected. With women present in the assembly for the first time, the church general council, will recommend that women be admitted to its membership.

In addition, the assembly also will consider further plans for a national church at Washington.

Highway Booths Will Aid Tourists

Lions Club Is Told Plans of Greater Capital Body by Director.

Information booths for tourists will be established on the main highways leading into Washington within the next three weeks, Ward H. Marsh, director of the Greater National Capital committee, told the Washington Lions Club meeting in the Hotel Mayflower yesterday.

Marsh said these booths will furnish a variety of civic information and also will keep an accurate check on the source of visitors to Washington. He explained the workings of the committee which seeks to bring more conventions and more residents to the Capital. Washington lags in not advertising its educational facilities, Marsh said. He declared that no city had ever been able to build up a great population increase without consistent and systematic promotion.

Dr. Guy Leadbetter, retiring president, presided at the luncheon, which was held in the garden of the Mayflower.

Worker Hurt in Caving Trench.

Tom Love, 55 years old, colored, of T street Hill, Anacostia, received several fractured ribs yesterday when he was caught in a cave-in of a trench at 3600 Morrison street northwest. He was taken to Garfield Hospital.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN SCHOOL NEEDS TOLD

Report to Recommend New Buildings Be Placed Near Hospitals.

Medical needs of crippled children in the District are proportionally greater than educational ones, a special committee that has been studying the needs of handicapped children since last December has concluded, it was revealed at a meeting of the committee yesterday at the Franklin School.

The committee recommends that as soon as possible the Weightman School for white crippled children and the Magruder for colored be abandoned because they are inadequate and that new buildings be erected adjoining hospitals so the children may have full advantage of every medical convenience.

Elaboration on these recommendations, together with specific recommendations for improved facilities for tubercular children, will be contained in a report of the committee to be released after a meeting June 10. The Board of Education will then receive the report.

Dr. H. B. Learned, chairman of the committee, which was appointed last December by Dr. Charles F. Carusi, late president of the Board of Education, announced that next year the committee will probably study the needs of other atypical children.

Other members of the committee are: Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, Board of Education member; Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, representing the District health office; George S. Wilson, representing the Board of Public Welfare; Dr. John Allen Talbot, of the Children's Hospital staff; Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, representing the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis; Garnet C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent of schools; Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent, and Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent.

$7,500 Is Awarded For Fall on Sidewalk

Loose bricks in the sidewalk in front of 107 B street southeast cost the District Government $7,500 yesterday when a jury in Justice James Proctor's Court returned a judgment for that amount for Mrs. Frank G. Leys, of New York. Mrs. Leys fell to the sidewalk when she tripped over the bricks in January, 1926.

Besides awarding her the $7,500 verdict, the jury gave her husband $200 for the loss of her services and for medical expenses.

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE sugar TO IMPROVE THE flavor OF CHEAP CUTS OF meat

When sugar is added with salt to stews, meat loaves and pot-roasts, the improved flavor will delight you.

CHEAP cuts of meat can be made deliciously tender if cooked long and slowly. But do you know that the flavor of such meat and its gravy can be surprisingly improved if a dash of sugar is added during this cooking process?

Successful cooks have proved the value of sugar in seasoning meat. They will tell you that salt by itself merely overcomes flatness, whereas the addition of sugar heightens the meat flavor to the fullest extent.

A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt, or equal parts of each, are good rules to follow in meat cookery. Try this idea in stews, meat loaves, pot-roasts or braised meat dishes—also in vegetables. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

PLOT TRIAL'S NIGHT SESSIONS LOOMING

Justice Orders Speeding Up of Case; Noble Sick for Two Days.

Justice Jesse Adkins yesterday twice threatened to hold night sessions in the blackmail conspiracy trial now in progress before him if defense attorneys do not speed up their presentation of the case. As one move to accelerate the case, he ordered that morning sessions begin at 9:30 instead of 10 o'clock.

The trial thus far has taken up 15 court days in full. One defendant has finished his testimony and there are three more to be heard. They are W. Clark Noble, Stephen A. Armstrong, jr., and Mrs. Anna Hillenbrand. James F. Bird, remaining defendant, has finished his testimony.

It was revealed that W. Clark Noble had been suffering from heart trouble for the past two days. This was brought out when his attorney, Richard L. Merrick, said Noble could not take the stand yesterday but would be able to appear today.

In his testimony Bird said he had made no threats against the Calhouns; that he had never done anything unethical in trying to straighten out the Noble claim against Capt. and Mrs. Calhoun. He denied, in response to a question by Irvin Goldstein, Assistant United States attorney, that he had been asked to resign from the Department of Justice several years ago.

L. R. Maddux, attorney for Mrs. Hillenbrand, addressed the jury and told what he expected to prove in her defense. He said she had been persecuted by the Department of Justice and when he attempted to repeat several times that she had been persecuted Justice Adkins stopped him with the remark: "You have said that once. That is sufficient." Mrs. Hillenbrand will take the stand today.

Accused Cornell Students Freed

Cases Against Trio Held in Memorial Incident Are Dismissed.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 27 (A.P.).—Charges of disorderly conduct against three students at Cornell, growing out of the hoisting of a red flag and a placard on the flagstaff at the university's World War Memorial, were withdrawn today and the cases dismissed.

I. E. Lichtbown, of Fall River, Mass.; Jefferson Weed, of Garden City, Long Island, and H. B. Shoemaker, of Bridgeton, N. J., were freed of all suspicion in the case by a statement by two other students, whose call for police after the flag was raised early yesterday brought the arrests.

In their statement the others said the defendants were in the act of removing the placard.

Virginia Girl to Get $300 for Prize Essay

Fredericksburg, Va., May 27 (A.P.).—Miss Isabel Agnes Farr, of Goochland County, a freshman at Fredericksburg State Teachers' College, won second place in the National Garvan Prize Essay Contest, according to an announcement received here today from the American Chemical Society of New York.

The $300 prize for her essay on "Chemistry in Relation to Aviation" will be presented during the college commencement exercises.

Increase Is Sought In Kirkland Term

Prosecutor Will Move on Monday for Sentence of 5 to 21 Years.

Valparaiso, Ind., May 27 (A.P.).—A move to increase the prison term of Virgil Kirkland was under way tonight. Prosecutor Robert Estill announced, after the Gary youth had been taken to the Pendleton State Reformatory to begin serving a sentence of one to ten years for assault and battery with intent to rape, that he would formally demand Monday that the sentence be increased to 5 to 21 years.

He made this statement after Attorney General James M. Ogden in Indianapolis in an informal opinion, had said that Kirkland's sentence of one to ten years in connection with the death of Arlene Draves was not correct.

Ogden cited a 1930 Supreme Court decision that a 1927 statute defining rape and setting one to ten years as punishment did not repeal a 1921 statute covering assault and battery in an attempt to commit rape, which fixed the penalty at 5 to 21 years and $1,000 fine.

Wage Cut Row Ends in Japan.

Tokyo, May 2 (A.P.).—Agitation against a wage cut for 60,000 employes in all government departments apparently collapsed tonight, relieving fears that a railway strike would be called and spread to other industries throughout Japan. Sanction by Emperor Hirohito of the cabinet's reduction of wages of government employes receiving more than $42.50 monthly appeared to have ended opposition.

EARLY MORNING BAN ON PARKING PRAISED

Chamber Committee Lauds Way in Which New Rule Has Been Handled.

Unanimous approval of the new traffic regulations prohibiting downtown parking between 8 o'clock and 9:30 o'clock was given yesterday by the transportation committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce at its monthly luncheon meeting at the Raleigh Hotel.

Congratulations were given the District Commissioners and traffic officials for "the efficient manner" in which the new regulation has been handled. In attendance as guests of the committee were: Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, W. A. Van Duzer, newly appointed director of traffic, and Inspector E. W. Brown, of the District Traffic Department. George E. Kenaipp, chairman of the committee, introduced the guests, all of whom were elected ex-officio members of the committee.

Before any future traffic changes are made a comprehensive investigation will be made of all aspects of the District Traffic Department, Mr. Van Duzer told the committee. In connection with the new plan for titling all District owned automobiles, Mr. Van Duzer asked that all automobile owners help by securing bills of sales.

A committee was appointed to investigate the proposal to reroute traffic through Logan and Thomas circles. The committee is composed of Grover Blackstone, chairman; J. Roger Yates, J. E. Hamill, E. L. Huffman and Robert J. Rothstein.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

PERHAPS this morning's announcement of most immediate interest to the theatergoers of the Capital is that the Rialto Theater will close for the season on Saturday night of this week.

This action on the part of the Universal executives should not be construed as a signal of defeat, but rather should be interpreted as a shrewd move on their part to safeguard the profits of the most successful year the Rialto has enjoyed under the leasehold of Carl Laemmle and Universal Pictures.

The suspension of activity at Ninth and G is for the hot summer months only, operation to be resumed, as usual, in the late summer or early fall, with a line-up of pictures in prospect that will insure another season as eminently successful as that just closing.

To wind up its final week in a blaze of holiday glory, the Rialto will continue "Hell Bound," a different sort of gangster picture that has been drawing large crowds throughout the week, through Saturday, Memorial Day. Not only that, but on Friday night a special holiday midnight performance will be given. The entire bill will be presented and Otto F. Beck will preside at the organ.

The plans of the Rialto executives are already formulated. F. A. Fiader, in charge of the Washington territory for Universal, will transfer his activities to the New York home office. Rodney Collier, managing director, will continue as Universal's resident representative in Washington and Rhinehold Wallach, house manager, on Wednesday, June 4, will sail from New York for an eight weeks vacation visit with his parents in Munich, Bavaria.

And to all of them, good luck, bon voyage, e pluribus unum and maybe a hoch der vaterland!

One thing more. Tonight will mark the last of Otto F. Beck's broadcasts from the console of the Rialto organ—that is, at least until fall.

When the new $200,000 Crystal Pool opens at Glen Echo Park on Saturday, it will be under the management of Harold N. Bangs, a man of wide experience in the conduct of enterprises of this kind.

Mr. Bangs is a native of Boston. His first job of pool construction was in Magnolia, Mass., Manchester-by-the-Sea, where he supervised the completion of the first swimming pool ever made with submarine lights. For the past three years he has been manager of the Nautical Swimming Pool at Revere Beach, Mass. He has been engaged on the construction of the Glen Echo pool, the first in this vicinity with submarine illumination, all winter.

Mr. Bangs has already engaged his corps of assistants and has appointed Benjamin Weissner, former stroke oar of the Syracuse University crew, captain of the life guards.

In addition to the holiday festivities at Glen Echo, there will be comparable celebrations at the other open air amusement places in and around the Capital. Seaside Park, located on the bay at Chesapeake Beach, will entertain crowds from both Washington and Baltimore and the gallant old steamer Charles Macalester will inaugurate its season's schedule between Washington and Marshall Hall, down the Potomac.

To keep the record straight, the National Theater Players next week will be seen in "Bird in Hand," the John Drinkwater comedy, in which Clifford Brooke, who directs all of the Players' offerings, himself will be seen in an important role. It will be recalled that John Warburton and Daphne Warren-Wilson both were members of the original company when "Bird in Hand" was presented twice last season at the Belasco.

Mr. Lake announces as the next attraction at his burlesque bazaar on Ninth street, the incomparable Hindu Wassau and her "Hindoo Belles," both favorites of local burlecue fans.

Robert E. Long—"Bob" to you, if you go back that far in Washington theatricals—for many years assistant manager, with Roland Robbins, of the old B. F. Keith Theater, later manager of Moore's Rialto and still more recently panjandrum of the Warner Bros.' Aldine Theater in Philadelphia, was a caller yesterday, the two-a-day cathedral over which he presides having closed for the summer solstice.

His many home town friends will be interested to know that Mr. Long is a little whiter about the temples, has taken on a few pounds of added embonpoint and dignity, and altogether looks more than ever like the President of the Board of Aldermen—provided, of course, that you haven't lived all your life in Washington and know how the President of a Board of Aldermen ought to look.

And the incoming film attraction for the new week, before we forget it, will be as follows: Palace, Ramon Novarro, in "Daybreak," and "Breezing Along," stage revue; Fox, Elissa Landi, Lewis Stone and Paul Cavanagh, in "Always Goodbye," and "Topical Tunes" stage Idea; RKO-Keith's, Mary Astor, Jack Holt and Ricardo Cortez, in "White Shoulders;" Earle, Winnie Lightner, in "Gold Dust Gertie," and Glenn and Jenkins headlining the vaudeville; Metropolitan, Spencer Tracy, Sally Eilers and Marguerite Churchill, in "Quick Millions;" Columbia, Norma Shearer, Robert Montgomery and Neil Hamilton, in "Strangers May Kiss," second week.

Personal to Mrs. W. M. B., 3501 Thirteenth street: Many thanks for the kind words and the art collection. What do I do with them now?

If you happen to think of it, ask me about Ishtar, Omar, Francois and Sappho, the office goldfish that have survived a couple of days now and will probably do all right if they can just get over Friday!

You haven't got an old parrot or a slightly used crocodile you don't need, I suppose?

Trip to Scotland Is of Little Cost

Recent Visitors in Capital End Jaunt After Small Expenditure.

Brief visitors in Washington on April 24, Mrs. Douglas Archer and her 12-year-old son, Douglas, jr., of Beverly, Calif., have arrived at their designation in Edinburgh, Scotland, after a trip from the Pacific Coast on the total expenditure of 1½ cents a mile for actual travel and 1 4-5 cents for all other expenses.

Mrs. Archer so stated yesterday in a letter from Edinburgh to The Post, which on April 25 carried an account of her novel economy trip, accompanying a picture of the pair. While here she explained they were traveling as inexpensively as possible, but that they were not skimping on hotel rates.

Two small handbags constituted their luggage. She declared: "In a measure I think traveling is the best way to buck depression." She added that "everybody seems to have their pockets buttoned up, but there's nothing to worry about; let them start buying the things they want, more especially, going the places they want."

Neuritis

There is no pain like Neuritis. There is nothing quite so torturing—so utterly unbearable as Neuritis. It robs life of all joy—and makes people desperate. But Neuritis is not hopeless—it responds to proper treatment. A well-known physician has written us. "Have been drinking Mountain Valley Water for six weeks for Neuritis and am feeling better than I have for two years." Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Ark., brings relief in Neuritis because it gets at the root of the trouble—it tends to neutralize the acids which are irritating the nerves and retards the further accumulation of these acids by aiding healthy, normal elimination through the kidneys. Renew your hope—learn how Nature can help you. Phone for our booklet today. Met. 1062.

YEARS OF GRACE

By MARGARET AYER BARNES

SYNOPSIS.

War is declared between the United States and Spain over Cuba and Stephen Carver calls on Jane Ward to tell her he is going to enlist. Jane is visibly moved by this news and Stephen is encouraged to tell her again that he loves her. This time Jane is more yielding and Stephen exultantly kisses her, declaring they are engaged. Jane, carried off her feet, is still somewhat doubtful, when the afternoon mail is brought in and she finds a letter from France. It is written by Andre after four years' silence. He has not forgotten.

STEPHEN—CHAPTER VI.

JANE slowly drew the letter from the thin-papered envelope. It looked strangely foreign. The very writing, faintly blotted on that sheer French paper, had a subtly alien air. But it was undeniably Andre's own. Yes—at the end of the twelfth closely written sheet, there was his name. "Your Andre." Her Andre! Jane turned to the first page and began to read.

"Dear Jane, I hardly know what to say to you, or how to say it. But of course I want to write. I want to write, even though I have no idea, now, what sort of a person you may have grown up to be, how you may have changed from the child that I loved."

Loved, thought Jane with a faint chill of foreboding? And child?

"We were both children, of course. We see that now. And in the four years that have passed you have grown up into a woman. I have a strange sense of embarrassment in writing to you. For I have grown up, too, Jane, and I am not at all sure that you will welcome my letter. Perhaps you do not even remember that I was to have written it."

Remember, thought Jane! What had she ever forgotten?

Heart Breaking When He Left Her.

"When I left you that day on Pine street—that day which, now, perhaps, you may not even care to recall—I thought my heart was breaking. I thought your heart was breaking too. But I was 19, Jane, and, of course, I have learned that hearts are of tougher fiber than I thought.

"I was miserable all summer long. Miserable all winter, too, though I was working very hard over my modelling. I thought of nothing but you and counted the days until I could see you. Actually counted them, Jane, on a calendar I made, crossing one off every evening."

Darling Andre, thought Jane!

"But I was 19, Jane. And life is life. I began, almost against my will, to be interested in all sorts of things. The Sorbonne and the studio and lots of other pure frivolities, though I was dreadfully ashamed of that, at first. Then I began to see, of course, that we would both have to go on living and growing up and changing into the kind of people that we were meant to be, and when the four years were over we would meet and see each other again and know, instantly, if we still cared. I couldn't imagine not caring about you. But what the four years would do to you I couldn't imagine, either. I was awfully afraid of them.

"Mother wrote me about you, of course, as long as father was in Chicago. I knew that you went to Bryn Mawr with Agnes and I was terribly glad. I knew you wanted to go and besides that, it seemed, somehow, to put off life for you, to keep you safe in an environment that I could imagine, to shut out the world. I never heard anything about you, after that. I thought of writing Agnes, but I never did. Mother didn't think it was quite on the level, after my promise to your father, to write Agnes letters that were really for you.

His Work Began to Get Him.

"And then, Jane, I entered the Beaux Arts and my work began to get me. I began to care terribly about it. I always had, of course, but this was very different. I was thrilled over what I was doing. I was thrilled all the time, day and night. I am still. I can't think of any time, during the last three years, when I haven't been terribly excited and happy to be working with my clay. I hope I can make you understand that—how much it has come to mean to me.

"For, Jane, I have just been told that I am to be awarded the Prix de Rome. It means three years' work in Italy. It means a chance for accomplishment that I have never known before. It means living for three years with the other students in bachelor quarters in the Villa Medici. I'll live like a monk there in a little white cell, working night and day to get all I can out of the opportunity the three years give me.

"Jane—I did mean to try to get to the States this summer. To work my way over on some boat just as soon as my courses were over and I'd finished a fountain I'm doing. I meant to spend next winter in Chicago. I thought I'd take a studio there and try to get a job at the Art Institute. I did mean to, I mean, if you, by any chance, still wanted me to come. I meant to write you a letter at this time, saying I would come like a shot if you would tell me to. But, Jane, surely you see that this is a chance that I can't let slip. I've got to take advantage of it. Next spring, if you want me, I'll come without fail. I'll leave Rome for a month or two—I'll manage it somehow—I'll come and we can see each other. Just as I write the words, Jane, I feel all the old emotion. Do you, I wonder, feel it too? I feel so very strange with you. What have the four years done to you? Are you the same Jane? You can't be, of course. But are you a little like the girl that——"

Jane's Cheeks Are Burning.

The sentence was not finished. Jane sat with burning cheeks, gazing at the closely written paper. How could he write like that—as if he still cared—when he was taking this Prix de Rome? The Prix de Rome? What was the Prix de Rome? Jane didn't know and felt she didn't care. What was any prize, any reward, any opportunity compared with love? Love, such as she and Andre had known? He had forgotten. She must face the fact. He must have forgotten. If he had remembered, nothing would have counted, counted for one moment, against the joy of reunion. "Next spring, if you want me, I'll come without fail!" Pallid words! Insulting words. Really insulting, from Andre to her. What had the four years done to her? What had they done to him? Jane turned again to the letter.

"Write me, dear Jane, that you understand. And tell me that you will want to see me, next spring, only half as much as I want to see you.

"Your

"Her—Andre'?" Jane's cheeks flushed again at the irony of the phrase. But there was still a postscript.

"I think you'd like my fountain. It's the best thing I've done. I wish I could show it to you. It's a study of Narcissus, gazing at his own reflection in the water. There's a nymph behind him, a deserted nymph, standing with arms outstretched, ignored, forgotten, as he stares, infatuated, in the crystal pool. There's something of you in the nymph, Jane. There's something of you in all my nymphs and Eves and saints and madonnas. Something you brought into my life. Romance, I guess it is. Nothing more tangible.
"ANDRE."

Writes Answer at Once.

Something of her in the deserted nymph! Something of him, thought Jane, with unwonted irony, in the famous Narcissus! And for this Andre she had been keeping herself for the last four years! This Andre who would rather go to Italy and take his Prix de Rome than cross the ocean to see the girl that——. For this Andre she had been steeling her heart against Stephen, Stephen who loved her and wanted her and was going to war, still wanting her more than life itself. Stephen, who had been her very slave for the last eighteen months, who loved her from the moment that he set eyes on her in Flora's little ballroom.

Jane rose and went to her desk. She pulled out her best note paper and seated herself squarely before her little blotter. When you killed things, thought Jane grimly, you killed them quickly.

"Dear Andre," she wrote, "I loved your letter. And of course I remember everything. Quite as much, I am sure, as you do yourself, I understand perfectly about the Prix de Rome and I hope very much you will come to Chicago next spring. I should love to see you and I should love to have you meet the man I am going to marry. His name is Stephen Carver and he is going to war, immediately, to fight the Spaniards. I shall marry him before he goes.

"As you say, we were both children, four years ago." Jane paused a moment, trying vainly to blink away her tears. It had been just a dream, she knew, but the end of even a dream was very dreadful. "Like you I was awfully upset, at first, but as you say, life is life. I loved my years at Bryn Mawr with Agnes. Soon after I came home I met Stephen. He has just persuaded me to marry him. Of course I am terribly happy." Jane paused to wipe her eyes, then added, as an afterthought, "Except for the war." That seemed to dispose of everything she thought. Just one more word was needed. She wrote it—"Jane."

She mailed the note before dressing for dinner. When she came up to her room again Andre's letter was still lying on her desk. She made a sudden movement as if to tear it into a hundred pieces. Then checked herself and slowly put it back in its envelope. Andre might have forgotten. She would pluck him from her heart. But the Andre that he used to be was still the lover of her childhood. Jane felt an odd sense of outrage at the thought of denying the past. She slipped the letter into a desk drawer.

Jane turned slowly toward her closet door. She would wear her prettiest dress for Stephen. She would tell him at once that she would marry him. She would try to make up to him for the way she had treated him. What if Stephen, discouraged, had forsaken her? Jane felt an overwhelming sense of gratitude for Stephen's faithfulness. She had never appreciated it before. Of course she loved him. She loved him and she would marry him. It was perfectly terrible that he was going to war.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

CARBON MONOXIDE.

IN some States carbon monoxide poisoning is compensatory. If a person can prove he has it or had it, and can prove that his employer, or some one else, is responsible for his having it, he is entitled to compensation, and the chances are that he can easily prove that he has been disabled. There is greater difficulty in proving that carbon monoxide was the cause.

Dr. May R. Mayers gives the following as the procedures to go through to prove that carbon monoxide was the cause of a given casualty. In the case of a person found dead it is not enough to prove that carbon monoxide was present in the air, or that some machine was running, or fire was burning, or that the ventilation was poor. A pink color of the skin may be due to something other than carbon monoxide. The examination should include examination of the blood for carbon monoxide and of the body to discover evidence of this poisoning. An autopsy should be made. If the person wore a gas mask this should be tested to determine whether or not it leaked.

If a person is found unconscious but alive it is very necessary to know whether carbon monoxide is responsible. The blood should be tested for this chemical. There should be a careful examination to exclude other causes of coma, such as drunkenness, diabetes, bright's disease, and some others.

If the unconscious person is found to be suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning, he must be kept alive until the gas can be eliminated and after the emergency has passed he must be watched closely for follow-ups such as pneumonia, anemia, nervous heart, and various forms of mental and nerve disturbances.

If there has been no coma or unconsciousness in a given case it may be much more difficult to decide what is the cause of the symptoms. The blood should be examined for the poisoning gas, but that examination may not help.

Headaches, dizziness, eye strain, insomnia in a person exposed to this case should cause suspicion. To settle the question the physician should learn whether the blood contains carbon monoxide and what is the condition of the air where the man works or sleeps. When either of these fail there are two or three helpful tests.

Expose the suspect to carbon monoxide gas. If he is a case of chronic carbon monoxide poisoning he will have a fast heart beat and will breathe rapidly after a slight exposure. His blood pressure will drop rapidly or shoot up for a brief spell. He is liable to become quite pallid and his head will ache or he will become dizzy.

CAUSE OF BAD BREATH.

Mrs. C. W. S. writes:

1. Will you explain some of the causes of bad breath?

2. Would an indication of such be the constant coating of the tongue?

3. What is the usual meaning of a coated tongue?

4. Will the eating of yeast cure it?

5. Will a silver knife take down the swelling in an injured finger?

REPLY.

1. Among the several causes of bad breath are certain decompositions occurring in the digestive tract. If this is the cause the method of prevention suggests itself.

2. It might be, but usually is not.

3. Among the causes is reversed peristalsis. Among the causes of reverse peristalsis are constipation, gall bladder trouble of some sort, adhesions. Another cause of coated tongue is sleeping with the mouth open.

4. Sometimes it contributes to a cure.

5. I don't think so.

NATS REGAIN SECOND PLACE, WINNING 2 AT BOSTON

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

I SEE by the papers that a spectator at a wrestling match in Baltimore, taking exception to the trend of the proceedings, was impelled to hop over the ropes into the ring and bash one of the principals full on the face, raising a lump as big as a pigeon's egg under his eye and rendering him hors de combat for the evening.

It was also stated that Cyclone Burns, the house referee who travels with the road company of the Londos troupe, did not see the blow struck, thereby setting a new record for astigmatism.

Such untoward conduct in the wrestling industry is to be deplored. The old catch-as-catch-can sport has come to a pretty pass when the spectators can take the decision into their own hands and get away with it. With referees standng idly by while fans who are moved by nothing more than their inclination in the matter or partiality permitted to take summary action, picture the confusion if it extends to other fields of sport.

On the Ball Field

The scene is Griffith Stadium. The Nats are leading the Athletics by a run in the ninth, with two out. The bases are full. Al Simmons is at bat. In the good old days, there was no course but for the irate fan to await developments. But in this era of free will, no. Friend fan leaves his seat, hops the grandstand barrier, strides rapidly to the plate. He swings from the heels and Simmons goes down. And out. The umpire didn't see it. Believing Simmons has fainted, he calls time so that Connie Mack may insert a pinch hitter. He does and the batter pops up for the third out. The game is saved for Washington. Great stuff.

Or maybe it was in the fall and Georgetown was playing the Navy eleven. The Hilltoppers have a 6-0 lead and the game is all but over. Then F. Merriwell, Navy halfback, breaks loose. Five, ten, twenty yards he has gained. On to midfield and he is clear. Just a gallop now to a touchdown. Tough on Georgetown. But no. What's the figure leaping out of the stands in the section by the 10-yard line? Hurrah! It's JJoe McGlook, Georgetown graduate of '97, and he's gaining on Merriwell. Crash! Down on the 5-yard line. The referee, the umpire, the field judge and the head linesman didn't see it. The game ends. Georgetown wins. Hoya!

Or the Tennis Court

It could have been a Davis Cup match. America is tied with Afghanistan, 2 to 2, with the final singles on the court. Tilden is finding the going hard against El Kamel, No. 1 man of the invaders. El Kamel wins the first set, the second set and is at match point in the third. Tilden makes a desperate return of a lob. And the ball is in. Kamel is after it like a hawk, scenting a placement point and victory for Afghanistan. But wait. A flying tackle by an All-American from out of the stands. Kamel goes down. And out. The referee didn't see it. Neither did the linemen. The point is saved for Tilden and America. Tilden rallies to win the point, the set and the match. Bravo! America. And American fandom.

Navy Netmen Beat Penn After 13 Years

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 27.—For the first time in thirteen years the Naval Academy tennis team conquered University of Pennsylvania today. The score was 6 to 3, the margin of victory being the Middies' superior work in the doubles. They won all three of the matches after an even division of the six strings of singles.

Play was the most spirited of any matches contested here this season. It was the climax of the season for the Middies, which was highly successful, their only setback being at the hands of Yale. Ten contests marked the season's schedule.

SINGLES—Loughlin (Navy), defeated Case, 6—4, 6—1; Greene (Penn), defeated Johnson, 6—3, 6—1; Robertson (Navy), defeated Luchs, 6—1, 6—3; Colton (Penn), defeated Reiter, 3—6, 6—4, 6—2; Gold (Navy), defeated Waldo, 3—6, 6—2, 6—4; McMorris (Penn), defeated Chew, 6—3, 7—5.

DOUBLES — Loughlin and Johnson (Navy), defeated Case and Greene, 6—4, 6—4; Holtzworth and Lucas (Navy), defeated Luchs and Colton, 3—6, 8—6, 8—6; Robertson and Chew (Navy), defeated Waldo and McMorris, 4—6, 6—1, 6—2.

Shields Opposes Robson, Wood Faces Boyd Today As Davis Cup Play Opens

3,000 to See U. S. and Argentine Clash in First Singles.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

FOR the first time since the instigation of the trophy in 1900 by Dwight Davis, then fresh from Harvard, a tie will be played today between the winners of the North and South American Davis Cup zones. Focusing the camera a bit finer, we find today Frank Shields, ranking United States Cup star, meeting Guillermo Robson, long champion of the Argentine. The match starts at 2:30 o'clock at the Chevy Chase Club, before, it is expected, the largest tennis gathering ever to witness a match in this city.

Following the Shields-Robson match, which promises to be a stirring battle, with the odds slightly favoring the hard-hitting American, Sidney Wood, the fair-haired scion of a long line of tennis forebears, takes the championship court against Ronaldo Boyd, a giant red-thatched Argentinian who looms almost twice as ponderous as the slip of American boy. There seems little to choose between these two players. Each has drunk deep of the experience which only world-wide play can give.

Boyd Carries Hope Of Victory Today.

It goes without saying that both nonplaying captains, French, of the South Americans, and Prentice, of this country, are eager to gain the jump today on the adversary. While it can not be said that Argentine has more than a slightly less than even chance to win the first singles match today, Capt. French is relying on Boyd to take the measure of his younger opponent, using as his major premise the fact that Wood last week succumbed to Marcel Rainville in the Canadian-U. S. tie at Montreal. Boyd, it is felt in the camp of the experts, is quite superior to Rainville.

The critical doubles match, to be played tomorrow, finds both nonplaying captains of a mind not to name their teams. However it is believed that if America succeeds in winning both matches today, by fairly decisive margins, Gregory Mangain and Clifford Sutter will be used. Capt. French, while he has made no official announcement, seems likely to choose Boyd and Adriano Zappa for his team. This is a virtually untried pair but a "natural" in every sense of the word. Zappa is, with del Costillo, the national doubles champion of Argentina. An able volleyer he should have little trouble teaming up with Boyd, whose speed of shot and foot will get him by.

Slugger Meets Soft Hitter.

Two greatly contrasted schools of tennis playing will converge today when Shields meets Robson. The American, who possesses the greatest build for tennis within the court memory of Capt. Prentice, is a product of the school of pounding a weakness until it cracks wide open. He can hit a tennis ball with sometimes alarming speed, is especially keen and has endless miles of run-

Petrolle Bout Decision to McLarnin

Fighters Stand Toe to Toe; Defeat of 1930 Is Avenged.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, May 27.—The customers saw spectacular vengeance done in the return fight between Jimmy McLarnin and Billy Petrolle in the Garden this evening. In return for one of the worst beatings that any fighter ever absorbed under the Garden firm's big top, McLarnin slugged Petrolle for ten rounds, inflicting much damage to a countenance already beaten badly out of shape, and won the unanimous decision at the close whereupon he turned a handspring and went away unblemished and apparently not much fatigued. The bout drew a gross return of $82,377, or $70,184 net, the best haul of the year.

A few months ago, Petrolle caught McLarnin in a careless moment early in their fight and knocked him absent-minded on his feet, proceeding thereafter to chop him apart in such a way that the finer sensibilities of certain patrons were offended and editorials appeared in the press asking if such things must be.

Tonight, McLarnin crept out of his corner, cautious and slow, going far to his left with a fixed grin on his face, and it was 30 seconds before he allowed Petrolle to come close enough to wing a punch.

Petrolle Lands Few Blows.

Petrolle landed only a few glancing swings to McLarnin's face in the entire ten rounds and for his steady forward plodding his only reward, aside from the financial, was a constant slugging of left hooks and right crosses on the chin, the cheek bones and the heavy awnings of bruised material which overhang his black, squinty eyes.

Neither fighter went down and at times the routine was close to monotony for McLarnin took few chances and Petrolle devoted himself almost entirely to catching. Not a single punch was offered to the body by either young man, Petrolle swinging constantly for the head that was generally bobbing beneath his punch or drifting back a few inches beyond the arc. Once before he had connected with one of those long-shot gambles and this evening his only hope was to land another of the same.

Three rounds went by before McLarnin felt sufficiently confident to risk a right-hand punch himself, but this one being succesful he settled down to a methodical scheme of clouting. His punches were grouped in series, a number of small, sharp left hooks to the face, then a hard left hook, followed by a creak of soles in the rosin and a dull, sodden sound as his right flicked acros sand banged the Fargo switchman on the face. Petrolle forced the fight, but he ran up no score and as often as he went looking for trouble he found it with his face.

No Knockdowns In Bout.

Neither young man sat down at any time, although Petrolle wobbled and his legs seemed to melt under his 138 pounds of heft when a right cross caught him with special emphasis in the ninth. But his heart was solid and he knew by this time, on the word of his own seconds, who were rasping at him in his corner that he had to knock his party out to win the fight.

The maximum price of $10.40, including a couple of dollars for the Government, only reminded the customers of more prosperous nights in the same house and brought them storming into the lobby early in the evening. Save the absence of the dress suit trade which used to occupy the first rows of the ringside section.

MACKS BEAT YANKEES IN 9TH, 6-5

Sherid Wildness Aids Champions; Cochrane Hits Homer.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27 (A.P.).—Roy Sherid's relief pitching was wild and ineffective today and the Athletics pounded ou a late 6-to-5 victory over the New York Yankees, their third in four games here.

Having scored three runs off Earnshaw in their half of the eighth, the Yanks were leading when Sherid took over the mound duties in the last half of the round. Before he could retire a man the Athletics had scored twice on two walks and hits by Cochrane, Simmons and Miller.

Owners Offer to Retire Stars of Connie Mack

Chicago, May 27 (A.P.).—No trades were negotiated among the American League club owners while meeting to elect William Harridge as president today, but most of the owners advised Tom Shibe, president of the Philadelphia Athletics, that they would be willing to support a pension fund for "Lefty" Grove, George Earnshaw, Mickey Cochrane and Al Simmons if he would retire them so the rest of the clubs could win some ball games. The compliment tickled Shibe.

For Humphreys Bows To Quantico Marines

The excellent hurling of Farmer Couch and the heavy hitting by his teammates gave the Quantico Post team a 5-to-1 victory over the Army at Fort Humphreys today. Couch held the Doughboys to 5 hits. This is the twenty-seventh victory for Couch this season.

Perkins held the Leathernecks during his stay on the mound but was relieved in the fourth inning by Sayer who lasted until the fifth, when Bumgardner took up the task and held the Marines to one run.

"Nig" Clarke, old timer of major league baseball, formerly with Cleveland, returned to action with the Marines today when he went in for Reep in the eighth inning. Clarke was in the Marine Corps during the war and came back to the corps after retiring from major league baseball. Nig is teaching the game to youngsters on the Marine team.

Red Sox Dealt Twin Defeat, 11-3, 4-3

Cronin Scores 3 With Double to Decide Second Game.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent).

BOSTON, Mass., May 27.—The Nationals, who are hopping in and out of second place almost daily, went back to the runner-up berth this afternoon by taking both ends of a double-header with the Red Sox while the Yankees were being nosed out by the Athletics. Manager Walter Johnson had to call on all of his southpaws to bring home the bacon in the two games, which attracted a gallery of about 8,500 cash customers.

Lloyd Brown went the route in the opener, which was won in a romp, 11 to 3, but Carl Fischer had to have a little help in the nightcap and Bobby Burke furnished it, this one finishing with the score board reading, Washington 4, Boston 3.

As may be gleaned from the score, the Sox were outplayed from start to finish in the opening encounter, but the home team put up a real battle in the second and was in the running until the very end.

Earl Webb, former Nat, was the hitting hero of the day, the big outfielder getting two doubles and a triple in the first game and two doubles in the second. It was a two-base error by him, however, which paved the way for the first Washington run in the nightcap affair. Myer hit the first ball for a single and carried on all the way to third when Webb let the ball get away from him. Sam Rice's long fly turned this into a run.

Myer's Fumble Produces Red Sox Run.

After an opening double off Spencer's bat had been wasted in the second, the Sox tied the string. This run was molded from Webb's two-bagger, a scratch hit by Pickering and Oliver's grounder, on which Myer fumbled. Big Ed Morris, who had started the game,

NATS RETAIN PENNANT HOPES

Undaunted by Pace of Macks With Margin Only 4½ Games.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, May 27.—Although for some time the Nationals have been confining their attention to second place in the league standing, they still look upon themselves as likely pennant winners and feel that they have not done badly in falling only four and a half games back of the leaders considering the fact that the Mackmen have won 18 of their last 19 games, including 17 in a row.

"If we can just keep on their heels, you'll see that the A's won't keep this up, especially when they hit their double-header streak," said Manager Walter Johnson tonight. The Nat leader would feel better, however, if some of the members of his own pitching staff would show the class of which they are capable, especially "General" Alvin Crowder.

Although the latter was credited with a victory over the Red Sox in Washington Sunday he had to have some help. He will draw assignment against the same team here tomorrow in the final of this series. And Johnson hopes that he will finally show that he has struck his stride. Danny McFayden again is expected to oppose the "General" on the hill.

Altrock and Schacht, who, due to the absence of one or the other, have done little clowning for the past week, showed Boston fans their whole bag of tricks between games here this afternoon and made a big hit. This pair goes better in the city of culture than in any other town on the circuit.

As Cliff Bolton was kept by the Nats largely because of his hitting ability, Manager Johnson decided to give him his first starting assignment behind the bat in the opening game in the hope of adding to his team's attacking punch. Bolton fanned twice, but he tripled in the seventh with two men on the sacks.

FIRST GAME.

As Lisenbee is not a good fielding pitcher the first two Nats up bunted. Myer was called out on a mighty close decision, but Sam Rice beat out his tap by a goodly margin.

Cronin raced over behind Bluege to rob Sweeney of a hit in the second. But for the fact that Pickering was on first and a force-play at second was turned in, the Nat shortstop's efforts would have been all for naught as there was no chance of nailing the runner at first.

Oliver came in fast to make a nice shoestring catch of Bluege's liner in round three.

Rothrock was charged with an error for a mental lapse in the fourth. With Brown on first, Myer rolled to the second-sacker. Instead of throwing the ball to one of the bases, he tried to tag Brown on the line. The latter eluded him, he then threw late to first, and all hands were safe.

Myer ended the home fifth by making a jumping gloved-hand grab of Rhyne's liner as it was passing over his head on its way to right field.

Manush climbed the hill at the base of the score board in left to make a

Meine Blanks Cards As Pirates Win, 4-0

St. Louis, Mo., May 26 (A.P.).—Pittsburgh's 4-to-0 victory over St. Louis today cost the Cardinals their first place position in the National League, with New York going to the top and giving second place to St. Louis.

Meine allowed eight hits but the Cardinals were unable to convert them into scores, while the Pirates obtained a total of ten hits off Johnson and Lindsey, four of them being off the bat of L. Waner.

Pitcher's Wildness Aids Cubs to Defeat Reds

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 27 (A.P.).—Cincinnati pitchers were wild and hit hard today by the Cubs, who won, 8 to 4, capturing their third straight game of the series. In the second inning Biff Wysong issued four passes forcing in the first Chicago run. Bush also was pounded freely, but kept the Reds' eleven hits scattered.

JAMESTOWN WINS 3-YEAR-OLD DEBUT IN ROMP

Twenty Grand Facing New Challenge

Son of St. James Is Winner at Belmont by 3 Lengths.

Polydorus Is Second; Seven Furlongs Run in 1:23 4-5.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, May 27 (A.P.).—Returning to the track where he won the 1930 Juvenile championship, George D. Widener's Jamestown today threw out a mighty challenge to Twenty Grand, Kentucky Derby winner, as he thundered down the Belmont Park stretch, winner of his initial, a 3-year-old, race.

From a financial standpoint, Jamestown's victory in the 7 furlong sprint known as the Tournament handicap, was negligible. The race was worth only $900 to the winner, but it served as a forerunner of greater turf battles to follow. The big Widener colt should have the Withers mile, decided next Saturday, all to himself, but on June 13 in the $60,000 Belmont Stakes, he will match strides with Twenty Grand over a mile and a half.

RULE A

For three-quarters of the distance in today's race, the long-striding son of St. James—Mlle. Dazie trailed back of the pace-setting Follow Thru, but once the field of six hit the turn for home, he plunged into the lead, never to be headed. Three lengths back at the judges' stand trailed W. R. Coe's Polydorus, while still another five lengths away followed Mrs. John D. Hertz's Valiencennes in third place. Farther to the rear were the Greentree Stable's unruly son of Man o' War, Anchors Aweigh, Follow Thru and C. V. Whitney's Withers candidate, Halcyon.

With Follow Thru setting a burning pace, Jamestown was caught in 1:23 4-5 for the 7 furlongs. The time was 1 4-5 seconds slower than the track record made in 1906.

The starfish is one of the greatest enemies of the oyster. Attaching itself to an oyster, it waits until the creature opens its shell for fresh water. As the shell opens the starfish gradually pulls on it, forcing it wider open. The starfish then projects its stomach into the shell and gradually assimilates the oyster. The starfish is unusual in this respect, for it can thrust its digestive organs outside its body, and does not have to wait to swallow food to digest it.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Plainfield Claiming, a test for 4-year-olds and upward, over the mile and 70 yards route, will feature the program at the Washington Park course this afternoon. In the supporting event, to be run as the second heat, eight fleet sprinters will match strides at the three-quarter mile distance. Each event carries a purse value of $1,400.

An allowance affair for 2-year-olds, to be decided at four and a half furlongs, will bring together a well balanced field of eight juveniles. The opening dash, fashioned for 2-year-old maiden fillies, and the three remaining events, for platers, will complete the card.

In the headliner, the Harned Brothers' consistent 6-year-old gelding TYPHOON appears to hold a slight edge over his sixteen rivals, in the mile and 70 yards struggle. The Harned campaigner will favor the fast track. KNIGHT COMMANDER scored an easy victory in his last start, and under identical conditions should furnish stern opposition. FAIR ROSALIND, owned by the Braedalbane Stable, winner of her two previous races, is capable of taking down the important money. PORTMANTEAU and DARK SEA are two steady routers and may prove dangerous.

FIRST RACE—A limit field of twenty maiden juvenile fillies will parade to the post in the five-furlong dash which opens the program. COUSIN JUDY should lead this band of nonwinners to the wire. She just missed the winners circle in her last attempt and figures to improve. SABINA H., from the J. Lowenstein Stable, showed speed the other day and figures to finish in the runner-up position. FLUENT has only to take care of STELLA F. to gain the minor award.

Second Race—A selected field of eight sprinters have been entered in the 6-furlong dash of the second. FIDDLER, in the Gallaher & Coombs string, has trained briskly since his last winning effort, and a final trial of 6 furlongs in 1:16 attests to his fitness. A. A. Baroni's smart 4-year-old NIFTY is well treated by the conditions and should force the pace. HAND TO HAND is another speedy workout steed and, on his morning works, figures to get into the money.

Third Race—EASTER TIME, conqueror of Adobe Post, appears a standout in the 4½ furlongs of the third number, which attracted eight juveniles to contest the $1,200 purse. PARIS BOUND from the W. Zeigler Stable, is given the place call, with SUSU and FRENCH HONEY, coupled as the Audley Farm entry, favored for the show.

Fourth Race—JOEY BIBB turned in a brilliant 6-furlong effort to finish second to Burgoo last outing and, at the added distance of 1 mile, is preferred over his nine rivals in the fourth event. FLYING CHEROKEE raced wide, but finished full of run and, with better handling may extend the top one. CHENE, the C. V. Whitney color bearer, will favor the route and is given the show call.

Sixth Race—In the final two events, which will be contested over the 1⅛-mile route, limit entries were received in both numbers. SILVER SCEPTER should annex the purse in the sixth. The W. Phillips plater raced well on opening day, and against this field, figures best. GREY GULL stepped 6 furlongs in 1:16 and appears ready to battle it out with the top one. SEARINGTON has has shown improvement and may prove troublesome.

Seventh Race—MOTHER'S CHOICE is the selection in the final heat. This 4-year-old scored impressively in her two victories at Aurora and should lead this band of platers from start to finish. ROYAL CHARGE, a stout finisher, will appreciate the 9-furlong route and is given the place call, with HAM favored over Murmuring Pines for the show end of the purse.

NATS TAKE 2 GAMES AT BOSTON

Cronin's Bat Figures Prominently in 11-3, 4-3 Victories.

found himself in trouble in the fifth, when the Nats scored three times and Wilcy Moore then appeared and pitched shut-out ball over the balance of the route, although the Nats blew a golden opportunity in the seventh when Spencer's double and Moore's error on Burke's intended sacrifice put men on third and first with none out.

It was revenge for an insult to Cronin, which gave the Nats their trio in the fifth session. With two out and two on as a result of doubles by Spencer and Myer, Morris intentionally filled the sacks by passing Manush. Naturally, a slight of this kind could not be overlooked by Cronin, and he followed with a base-clearing double off the fence in left, dying himself when he tried to stretch the blow into a triple.

The Sox got to Fischer in their half of this round, scoring twice on singles by Oliver, Berry, Rhyne and Van Camp. In fact, it took a fine relay by Cronin to nip Rothrock at the plate with what would have been the tying run. Johnson let Fischer start the next frame, but when Webb greeted him with a double, Burke, who had been holding secret practice behind the stands, was called into action.

Burke Shows Fine Form.

With Burke's entrance into the game the Sox hopes died, for he not only prevented Webb from advancing further than third in this round, but did not allow a hit in the remaining three frames, although a walk, a passed ball and an out had the tying run on third in the seventh.

Five of the eight Washington hits in this game were doubles, with Spencer getting two. Kuhel and Myer each cracked out a brace of safeties, with Sam Rice making the best fielding play—a great running catch—to rob Van Camp of at least a double, starting round eight.

The opening game could have been declared "no contest" before it was half over, for the Nationals scored four runs off Lisenbee in the first three frames, increased their total two more off Kline's shoots in the fourth and knocked him out of the box in the midst of a five-run rally in the seventh. Brillheart's rescue act was staged too late to do the Sox any good.

Details of the making of all of the Washington runs would fill a book and will be dispensed with here, but suffice to say, every Nat, except Ossie Bluege, participated in the eleven-hit attack and every member of Johnson's cast scored at least once. Sam Rice, with three hits, led the Nat attack, with Cronin poking out two doubles. He and Bolton led in driving home runs, each propelling two over.

Brown Hurls Airtight Ball.

Meanwhile Brown pitched airtight ball. Until the Sox scored their three runs in the eighth, when the southpaw let down slightly, the only Boston player who had gotten as far as second base had been Earl Webb. He had reached second on his double in round 2 and third base in the sixth on his triple.

This former Nat, by the way, accounted for most of the damage done Brown's offerings as, in addition to the two extra base raps already mentioned, it was a second double off his bat which drove home two of the Boston runs in the eighth. This was the only session in which the Beaneaters were credited with more than one hit, as singles by Brillheart, Rhyne and Van Camp had preceded Webb's two-bagger.

CROWDER TO FACE RED SOX TODAY

nice catch of Rothrock's looper starting the alien sixth. He was so pleased with himself that he threw the ball to Umpire Nallin, who was sleeping on the foul-line back of third, rudely awakening the arbiter, who just managed to jump out of the way of the sphere.

Brown's underpinning twice gave him assists. In the eighth, a hot one off Swweney's bat caromed off the pitchers foot direct to Bluege, who made the out at first.

Bluege was the only Nat failing to hit safely, but he walked once and twice benefited from two-base errors made on loopers off his bat. Pickering muffing one in the second and Rothrock another in the ninth. Each time those "boots" came opening innings.

Cronin jumped a mile to snare Oliver's liner opening the home ninth. The "San Francisco Kid" just managed to reach the apple with the finger tips of his gloved hand.

SECOND GAME.

West went back far and well over toward left to fasten himself on a drive off Rhyne's bat opening the game for Boston. It was a "Jesse James" catch.

Morris got Cronin's "Irish" up in the fifth when he purposely walked Manush to fill the bases and to bring the Nat shortstop to the tee. All Cronin did was to clear the bases with a double against the left field wall. This was the Nats' fifth hit of the game and their fourth double in a row, Myer having opened the game by singling on Morris' first offering.

M'LARNIN WINS IN PETROLLE BOUT

peering into the glare of the lights with an alcoholic blink, the attendance was happily reminiscent of the late Rickard's time and the gory operatfcs of Berlenbach, Delaney and Michael McTigue. In fact, some brazen optimist, identity unknown, would come down to the ring wearing a boiled shirt and it shone there amid the last year's worsteds and shiny serges, a lily blooming in a soup-punch.

What they were using for money nobody thought to explain, but the bon vivants of the herring parlors over on Broadway were reported to have booked much business on the main event at odds of 2½ to 1 on McLarnin to win, presently trimming the price to 7 to 5 under pressure of the Petrolle business. Possibly the entire traffic didn't exceed $25, however, for a party can run up a reputation as a big oil man from Oklahoma with a flash roll of not more than five singles nowadays.

ning in his sturdy legs. He is 20 years old.

Robson is 27 years old, and the softer hitter. He depends a lot on deception of length and angle. He undercuts his forehand and tops his backhand, just the reverse from the dyed-in-the-wool player. He can play equally well in any portion of the court, and, habitus of the center court at Wimbledon that he is, is respected through the known tennis world as a player of real merit. If he loses today it will be because he has been blasted off the face of the court, by a younger, stronger more aggressive opponent.

Play 3 Exhibitions Before Hoovers.

Yesterday was an active day for the members of both teams, presentation at the White House and at the home of the Secretary of State being highlights of a busy day of social and tennis activity. Three exhibition matches were played on the White House court before a distinguished audience, which included President and Mrs. Hoover. The team of Wood and Shields led Mangin and Sutter, 4—2, when it made way for the match in which Boyd and Mangin contested Costello and Zappa. Play was stopped at 3—3 to permit Zappa and Sissener to give a brief singles exhibition.

A side glance at the far-flung internationalism of tennis was had at the ceremony of the draw, held beneath the ancient Maya portico in the rear garden of the Pan-American Building. Abner Y. Leech, acting referee of the matches, drew the names and the order of play from an ageless bronze bowl unearthed in Yucatan, while sound newsreel cameras recorded the sight of a semi-circle of interested South American diplomatic officers, State Department officials, Governor General of Porto Rico, Theodore Roosevelt; U. S. L. T. A. moguls and the players of the Argentine and American teams, whose forbears were English, Irish, Scotch, Spanish and Italian.

FAVORITES REACH SEMIFINALS IN WOMEN'S GOLF

Play for Title Is Devoid of Upsets

Mrs. Meckley Meets Mrs. Colladay on Today's Card.

Mrs. Haynes Opposes Mrs. Hume in Other Bracket.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE semifinal round in the womens' District golf championship will be played this morning with Mrs. Betty Meckley, Indian Spring, paired against Mrs. S. F. Colladay, Columbia, in the upper bracket, and Mrs. J. M. Haynes, Columbia, opposed by Mrs. Hume Wrong, Chevy Chase, in the lower half.

Up to the present time there have been no unexpected results in the matches played in the championship flight of the tournament. Mrs. Meckley is the present District champion and Mrs. Colladay, who is her opponent this morning, was runner-up last year. All of the semifinalists had comparative easy matches yesterday, the four players eliminated being Miss Katharine Lowman, Congressional; Mrs. Perry B. Hoover, Indian Spring; Mrs. Harrison Brand, jr., woman champion of the Chevy Chase Club, and Miss Virginia Williams, the youthful star of the Congressional Club.

In the consolation flight of the first sixteen, however, Miss Winifred Faunce, unattached, was able to survive only after a battle against Mrs. L. O. Cameron, Chevy Chase, which was carried to the twenty-second hole, while Mrs. J. F. Gross, Indian Spring, in the same flight, won from Mrs. Frank Tomlinson, Columbia, on the nineteenth hole. NAVY'S NINE BEATEN IN 11TH, 12-7

Mt. St. Mary's Wins After Middies Tie With Rally.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 27.—Heavy hitting at stages marked the game between Mount St. Mary's College, of Emmittsburg, Md., and Navy here today, which was won by the upstate boys after a hard eleven-inning battle, 12-7. The Mountaineers had the game well in hand up to the eighth inning, when the Tars staged a rally to register five runs and knot the count at 7 all. It was anybody's game after that, both teams getting men on bases, but their scornig efforts were thrwarted by sharp fielding, but in the eleventh the visitors took the Coombs shoots and bunched five hits and, with the aid of two errors, for five runs.

But the really big factor in the victory of the Mount St. Mary's was the fine twirling of Edelen, a stockily built right hander, who finished the battle as strong as when he started, thereby offsetting the let-down in the eighth, when the Middies got to him for two homers, one by Byng, and a single and, with a free pass and an error sandwiched in between, the home team gathered five tallies.

The Mountaineers put the game away in the eleventh when Tracy, Ryscavage and Connell hit safely in a row, Farrell was safe on Keen's error, Edelen doubled to right and Dooley's single to center got past Byng.

Ryscavage, Mountaineer first sacker, had a field day at bat. A homer, double and three singles out of six trips to the plate was his record.

It was reported here that Pitcher Edelen is slated for a trial with the Washington Nationals. He showed plenty of speed and control and had the Tars completely up in the air, except in the eighth.

Three Washington Boys Given Letters by Duke

Special to The Washington Post.

Durham, N. C., May 27.—Forty-three Duke University athletes, participants in baseball, track, tennis, golf and swimming, will be awarded monograms for service on the various teams this spring, it was announced today at the university. Included in the raft of athletes are Nelson Colley, Horace Duffey and Don Garber, of Washington, D. C.

Special honor will be given to Colley, the sophomore star from Central High School, in that he will become, by virtue of awards in baseball and track, one of the two three-letter men in school. His other letter came in football. The other three-letter man is Kidd Brewer, of Winston-Salem, N. C., captain-elect of the 1931 team.

Duffey, also a product of Central High, wins his letter in baseball, while Garber, a former Western High athlete, wins his insignia for service on the tennis team.

SHAMROCK V WINS.

Southend-on-Sea, England, May 27 (A.P.).—Sir Thomas Lipton's America's Cup challenger, Shamrock V, today won the first race for big yachts in English waters this year, defeating Astra and Candida in a 40-mile run off Southend.

Shamrock was away last but quickly overhauled her competitors and was 3 minutes ahead at the 20-mile mark.

TAKOMA HIGH WINS.

The Takoma-Silver Spring High School Baseball Team added another scalp to its list of victims yesterday when the Poolesville tossers were subdued by a 9-3 score on the Silver Spring diamond. Schnabel pitched a steady game for the winners, while the heavy hitting of Clark and Lizear featured the attack. Rubel and Reed performed well for Poolesville.

ALEXANDRIA HIGH GIVES LETTERS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., May 27.—Forty letters for football, baseball, track and basket ball will be awarded to Alexandria High School athletes probably Monday morning at the high school assembly hour, it was announced today by "Squire" Given, athletic director of the "Twins."

The Alexandria High School teams enjoyed a successful year in the four major sports. In football the varsity eleven was tied with Fredericksburg and Washington and Lee for Third District honors, only to lose out on a decision by the district committee.

Basket ball activities boomed for the "Twins." The girls also entered a team in this competition and defeated Fredericksburg and Washington and Lee, their foremost rivals. Records for the boys disclose they were runners-up for the State of Virginia court honors in Class B After defeating all foes they were eliminated by Fredericksburg in the final.

Baseball Team Won 5 Games.

The baseball team won five games and lost five. One game ended in a tie. Business, Hyattsville, Western and Charlotte Hall (twice) were the teams to lose to the Alexandrians. However, they fell before Fredericksburg and Washington and Lee in Third District competition. This honor was later won by Fredericksburg Yellowjackets.

The track season proved unsuccessful for the "Twins." After starting off with bright prospects the boys lost interest and failed to come out daily for practice. All meets were canceled and only one letter was awarded.

Those to receive varsity letters follow:

FOOTBALL—Capt. Luckett, Jackson, Violett, Studds, Mendelson, Carr, Jacobs, Turner, Moriarity, Bruin, Petersillia, Jenner, Travers, Routzhan, Haywood and Lindsey.

BASKETBALL—Carr, Bruin, Travers, Evans, Boran, Schriener, Hudson and Jackson.

BASEBALL—Carr, Turner, Moriarity, Bruin, Travers, Schriener, Hudson, Clift, Fletcher, Godfrey, Stump, Foltz, Baber, Bowman.

TRACK—Jack Hoeft.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL—Miss Edith Spaulding, manager; Roberta Hoy, captain, and Misses Gaines, Angel, Hawes, Carter, Haley, Moriarity, Robertson, Hitt, Dienelt and Caton.

Given, athletic director of the "Twins," stated he has arranged eleven football games for next year. Eight players from the varsity squad of 1930 will be lost to the team in 1931. They are Travers, Luckett, Petersilla, Turner, Moriarity, Haywood and Lindsey. The "Twins" coach stated he has a large reserve squad and expects to be able to fill their berths.

Schedules for the other sports are also being arranged for the next school term.

Western 15-10 Victor Over Gonzaga Nine

Western High outslugged Gonzaga yesterday to take a 15-10 decision in a wild game played at Georgetown University, banging out 15 hits, including four triples to turn the trick.

Western scored in six of the nine innings, while Gonzaga was able to do little in the way of offensive tallying until the last half of the ninth, when the Purple team batted in six runs before being retired.

Clark and Oliver were the big guns of the Western attack, each hitting safely four times in five times at bat. Each collected a triple and Clark added to his fame by handling six chances at third base in good style.

STOCKS AGAIN CLOSE LOWER AFTER RALLY

Steel Common Off 3 Points in Slump; Few Selected Issues Are Higher.

New York, May 27 (A.P.).—Reassuring statements from sources high in business, finance and Government fell on deaf ears in the stock market today. Whatever stimulus prices had received from the stock exchange "bear hunt" petered out in another wave of selling, which broke through previous resistance levels in all but a few pivotal shares.

The market rallied in the last quarter hour as shorts who had sold on an unfavorable batch of midweek trade statistics made some purchases, but a large majority of issues closed lower, the average loss being about a point. Sales totaled 2,500,000 shares.

It was hard sledding for the rail and steel stocks. With ingot production a step nearer 40 per cent and prices very unsettled, speculative Wall street feels the steel industry will drift deeper into the doldrums before it is rescued by the next seasonal upturn which might be expected in a couple of months. This week's Iron Age estimates output at 44 per cent of capacity against 45 a week ago, while Steel puts the radio at 41 per cent, a drop of 3 points.

Steel Off 3 Points.

U. S. Steel common and an extreme drop of 4⅝ to 90⅜, a new low, before rallying to close at 92¼, off 3 points. Its performance was rather representative of the entire market, although many pivotal issues did not suffer so large a maximum decline and a few made full recoveries.

General Electric resisted stubbornly and closed a point higher. American Telephone, which also held above its previous low, confined its loss to a fraction. American Can, Bethlehem, Allied Chemical, Anaconda, Loew's and Standard Oil of New Jersey were down a point net. Crucible Steel and Gillette were weak. Pere Marquette sold 5 points lower on the dividend omission.

The April railroad earnings make a poor comparison not only with a year ago, but with March, for the loss in income last month reached a larger percentage than in the immediately preceding period. The market also attributed weakness of the rail issues to the Interstate Commerce Commission's refusal to take the initiative in the freight rate increase.

Bearish View Taken.

This, of course, is not an intimation of the commission's attitude toward a rise, but the market appeared to take a bearish view of the situation. Many of the losses in carrier stocks were substantially reduced.

Electric power output, a close barometer of the state of trade, was off 4.4 per cent last week in comparison with 1930, the largest decline of the month. The drop was sharper than for the previous week, and contrasted with gains for the third week of May during the last three years. The largest losses in production are occurring in the central industrial area.

Cotton made an early advance, but the session later saw new lows. However, maximum declines were reduced and net losses were 3 to 8 points. Wheat was firm temporarily, finally giving up about a cent a bushel. The day's weather reports, the weak stock market and a disappointing estimate of the world's visible supply were contributory factors. Corn eased fractionally.

Foreign exchanges were mostly heavy. Sterling cables sagged 3-32 to $4.86 13-32 and the mark lost 3 points. A late break carried the Spanish peseta to a new 1931 low. Argentine pesos were also soft.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 27 (A.P.).—Grains went downhill with the stock market today. Timely generous moisture relief in South Dakota and Montana covered in Minnesota and North Dakota, where drought complaints have been numerous, tended also to slacken demand for wheat. Operating further to weaken the wheat was word that reapers had started cutting the new 1931 wheat crop in south Texas, and that the harvest was expected to be general throughout central Texas June 5 to June 15.

Wheat closed nervous, unchanged to 1⅛ cents lower; corn unchanged to ¾ cent off; oats, ½ to ⅞ down, and provisions showing 7 to 37 cents fall.

Lowest prices of the day in wheat came during the final dealings. Earlier, the market had shown considerable strength, but for at least the time being a majority of believers in higher prices displayed signs of confidence after breaks in United States Steel shares especially had received widespread notice. Almost complete absence of North American wheat export business was an additional bearish influence.

Announcement that the world's available supply of wheat totaled 417,000,000 bushels against 324,000,000 a year ago was commented on as accounting for the indifferent attitude of overseas importers. Domestic wheat and flour exports during April were figured as only 6,954,000 bushels and for ten months since July 1 were but 107,552,000, compared with 130,711,000 during the same period last year. Canadian drought advices were as bullish as ever, but appeared to be lost sight of temporarily in view of the action of securities. Fresh reports that winter wheat showed evidence of low vitality in western Kansas and western Nebraska were also ignored near the close.

Corn and oats inclined downward almost from the start, largely as a result of warmer weather favorable for corn planting and cultivating.

BOND PRICES LOWER, DUE TO HEAVY SALES

Day's Turnover on Exchange Totals $11,776,000; Rails Show Broad Decline.

New York, May 27 (A.P.).—The bond market staged a general decline today. Sales totaled $11,776,000, compared with $9,628,000 on Tuesday, a fact which reflects some selling pressure. After opening firm, the price trend turned downward toward noon and continued to recede until the close. A number of new lows for individual issues were established. Rail obligations afforded a broad decline, recessions in other groups being irregular. The Standard Statistics average price of ten representative rail bonds dropped 1 point to 98.2, a new low for 1931. The average for ten issues each of industrials, railroads and public utilities was half point lower at 94.1, which is a small fraction above the year's low for that average.

Even some of the high-grade bonds which have shown strength recently yielded to the pressure and closed lower. Atchison general 4s, Delaware Hudson refunding 4s, New York Central new 4½s and the general 4s and Pennsylvania debenture 4s lost ground. Lower-grade rails were generally lower.

Most of the widest losses occurred among foreign obligations. Net losses among Argentine bonds ranged upward to 12¼ points, which was recorded in the 6 per cent issue of October, 1959. Losses ranging from 1 to 5½ points were common among the issues of Antioquia, Berlin, Berlin City Electric, Brazil, Chile, Chile Mortgage Bank, Cordoba, German Agricultural Bank, Minas Geraes, Montevideo, Hungary, Uruguay, Siemens & Halske, Prussia and Nuremberg. Specific explanations of the weakness were not forthcoming. Both issues of Colombian 6s of 1961 spurted upward on a large turnover.

Losses in industrial and public utility bonds were less impressive, but the trend was clearly downward. The trading in these groups was much less active than in the rails.

3 PER CENT IS RULE ON SAVING DEPOSITS

Washington Clearing House Fixes New Interest Rate; Banks Get Less.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The Washington Clearing House Association has adopted a rule providing that after June 1 no new savings deposits shall be taken at any greater rate of interest than 3 per cent.

In making this announcement yesterday, President H. H. McKee, National Capital Bank, who is chairman of the local clearing house association, said, "So far as the future is concerned, it is my personal opinion that the rate on savings deposits in the District of Columbia will not be reduced below 3 per cent."

Reductions on both time and demand deposits have been quite general recently throughout the East. In March, the local clearing house association adopted a resolution binding all member and associate member banks to reduce on April 1, the rate of interest paid by them on demand deposits one-half of 1 per cent. It was also ruled then that thereafter the rate paid on demand deposits should not be greater than the reduced rate. It was explained that this rule did not affect the rate of interest paid on time or savings deposits.

Bank Deposits Rate.

In February, the local clearing house association adopted a rule fixing the maximum rate of interest that may be paid by member and associate member banks on deposits of banks and trust companies at 1½ per cent a year. The former rate had averaged approximately 2 per cent. Prior to the ruling on demand deposit rates, these had averaged generally 2 per cent. Thirteen of the 39 banks of Washington are members of the clearing house association and 22 are associate members.

Observers of business in Washington are finding little basis for altering the opinions of the recent past that sure and certain signs of improvement will be deferred to the last few months of 1931. It is evident, however, that the trend of sentiment in the Capital has been relatively stable in this regard, as compared with the vacillating hopes and fears of the remainder of the country, says the Standard Statistics Co. of New York, in a current survey of business prospects as viewed from Washington.

Standard Statistics Statement.

This states, in part: "Although the recent meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States indicated a consensus of business leaders favorable to some sort of economic stabilization, the Government has absolutely no specific plans for establishing a supereconomic council to direct trade movements during the recovery period. Such activity at present is confined to putting moral pressure on many industries to continue operations at as stable a rate as possible and to maintain wage scales. In this connection, unemployment schemes probably will be voted by a few State Legislatures next winter.

"Both employers and labor are beginning to realize that actual wages paid very likely will be reduced in the future, largely through cuts in working hours."

Increased demand for rayon on the part of weavers and knitters has resulted in a sharp curtailment of raw silk consumption, accompanied by a further decline in raw silk prices and little reduction in surplus stocks on hand, a review in Textile Organon, published by the Tubize Chatillon Corporation, says. The rayon market, on the other hand, continues strong and active.

DISCOUNT COMPANY FOR CITIES FAVORED

Annual Convention of Real Estate Boards Begun in Baltimore.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 27.—The creation of a central urban discount corporation whose function would be to buy or discount mortgages from the various agencies lending money on urban real estate was urged today by Marcus Nadler, assistant director of the International Institute of Finance and a member of the faculty of New York University.

Mr. Nadley spoke at the afternoon session of the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in the ballroom of Lord Baltimore Hotel.

Central mortgage institutions which exist in practically every country of Continental Europe and in a number of countries of South America, established in many cases with the aid of the government, have given the home owners of these countries in the financing of their homes access to the capital markets of the world, he pointed out.

Able to Borrow Money.

They have enabled citizens of Germany, France, Denmark, Hungary, Finland, Jugoslavia and other countries, Mr. Nadler said, to borrow money in the United States with which to finance their home building and other real estate development. Mortgage bonds of European and South American central mortgage institutions now are outstanding in the American markets to the amount of more than $200,000,000, Mr. Nadler said.

"The central urban mortgage discount corporation," the speaker held, "should not deal directly with the public. Under present conditions a central bank for urban real estate which would be in direct contact with the borrower, as are central mortgage banks in Europe and South America, is out of the question. Establishment of a cooperative system, such as is in use in some European countries would not be the best solution.

Not Given to Cooperation.

"Americans as a whole are not given to cooperation. To organize home owners into cooperatives might be a task that would last for decades. The most practical plan to meet American conditions, it seems to me, is a central urban mortgage discount corporation that would buy or discount mortgages from savings banks, small commercial banks, building and loan associations, insurance companies, mortgage companies and others whose main function is the lending of money on urban real estate. On the basis of these mortgages the central mortgage discount corporation would issue its own bonds which would be secured by the mortgages of the individual borrowers and by the capital surplus of the central bank."

Arthur J. Lacy, of Detroit, chairman of the property owners division, made the proposal in his address that the various State Legislatures create in each State an independent nonpolitical, highly qualified commission to draft proposed bill and constitutional amendments on fundamental matters of State and local taxation.

Approximately 1,400 delegates are attending the convention, which today spent its first full day in open session. This morning Harry S. Kissell, of Springfield, Ohio, president of the association, made the first speech of the session in which he said if real estate had taken the same drop which other commodities took during the depression, "This country would have been in a financial shambles today." According to Mr. Kissell, real estate has been the great stabilizing factor during the last two years.

U. S. Commercial Pact With Austria Effective

(Associated Press.)

Exchange of ratifications at Vienna making effective the Austro-American commercial treaty providing reciprocal favored-nation treatment was announced yesterday by the State Department.

The treaty is similar to that between the United States and Germany, which was the subject of attention by the State Department during recent discussions over the proposed Austro-German custom union. Department officials have not yet determined whether the German-American agreement and the now effective Austrian agreement would afford the United States the right to claim privileges in commercial matters with the two countries as would be accorded by the proposed customs union.

Curb Review

New York, May 27 (A.P.).—The persistent wearing away of values in the curb market quickened today, after yesterday's patrial let-up.

A wide assortment of prominent shares penetrated new low ground, and as there is less short selling in this market, it did not rally under the influence of covering in the final dealings, as the big board did. Losses of 1 to 10 points were numerous. Transfers approximated 480,000 shares, duplicating yesterday's turnover.

Oils, after yesterday's moment of stability, again slumped, reflecting the weekly petroleum statistics, showing futrher gains in East Texas crude output, and rumors of crude price cutting in the midcontinent area. Indiana, Vacuum and Gulf sagged a point or more to new lows. Cities Service yielded a fraction.

The more erratic utility issues sold off substantially. Montreal Light, Heat & Power, not often traded here, dropped 9 points to 38. American Gas & Electric and Northern States Power "A" each declined 4 points to new bottom levels. Duke Power lost 2 and Electric Bond & Share about 1.

Aluminum Co. was a weak feature of the industrials. This issue, which has sold as high as 224 this year, tumbled to a new low at 100¼ and closed at 103, off 10 points for the day. Babcock & Wilcox, a lightly traded issue, sold at 92, off 6. Deere and Parker Rust Proof lost 2. Ford, Ltd., sagged a point to 11¼, a new bottom.

Some of the infrequently traded investment trusts appeared at sharply lower prices. American Capital "B," which last traded at 4, appeared at 1¼. General Capital Corporation sold at 27, off 5. United Founders touched a new bottom at 4½.

ALEXANDRIA CADETS PRAISED FOR DRILL

Col. Clarence Deems Cites Report of Inspector on School Tests.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Col. Clarence Deems, professor of military science and tactics in the Alexandria High Schools, has issued a general order publishing extracts from the report of the Federal inspection of the cadet corps, recently conducted by an officer of the regular Army. Col. Deems states that the results of the inspection show the loyal cooperation and intense interest of the cadets at both the Alexandria and the George Mason High Schools, which features, he says, essentially have evoked a favorable report in spite of the inadequate facilities provided. Soldierly conduct of the cadets in overcoming such difficulties in the way of suitable means for military instruction is, he says, worthy of commendation.

The comment under the head of "Leadership," Col. Deems says, carries particular weight, since leadership in civilian life, in business or profession, where the educated man is called upon to handle other men considerately, yet with decision, is one of the greatest peace-time values of this training.

In the report of inspection, the officer had this to say: "Witnessed close order and extended order drill. Close order drill consisted of squad, platoon and company movements. The cadence in marching was excellent. Manuel of arms was very well executed, the position of the piece in each movement was noticeably good, and showed excellent instruction by the professor of military science and tactics."

Frederick L. Flynn, of this city, was yesterday chosen Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of Virginia at the State convention held in Roanoke.

Miss Eleanora Dyson is chairman of a card party to be held tomorrow evening in the high school auditorium for the benefit of the fund for the annual Senior Prom of the Alexandria High School, and is soliciting reservations for the affair.

The recent May festival presented by the pupils of Mount Vernon School, which was beautifully costumed and enacted, will be repeated on June 4, by request, was the announcement made yesterday by C. H. Strader, principal of the school.

John W. Rust, of Fairfax, an attorney, yesterday filed with Charles C. Carlin, jr., Democratic chairman of the Thirtieth senatorial district, notice of his candidacy for the State Senate, subject to the Democratic primary to be held on August 4. Mr. Rust, while a native and resident of Fairfax has many affiliations in Alexandria and has been visiting a number of friends here in preparation for entrance into the campaign.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Retail Merchants' Association that the retail stores in the city will remain open all day Saturday, May 30, which is a National holiday, but owing to the Saturday trade will not be observed generally.

Mrs. George W. Roop, reservation chairman for the American Legion Auxiliary card party on Monday, June 1, in Gadsby's Tavern, is asking all auxiliary members to make their ticket reports to the commitee at once.

Monday is the last day on which city taxes may be paid without incurring a penalty, which will go on automatically after closing time on that day. The office of the city collector will be closed all day Saturday, but on Friday and Monday evenings from 7:30 until 9 o'clock it will be kept open for the accommodation of those who are unable to call during regular business hours.

The commissioner of revenue, Charles H. Callahan, has announced that Monday at 5 o'clock will be the deadline for filing State income tax returns. His office also will be closed all day Saturday.

The body of Sexton B. O'Neill, who died Tuesday from a self-inflicted gunshot wound, was brought to Demaine's undertaking establishment, where Dr. Ford Swetnam, deputy coroner of Fairfax County, after viewing the body, issued a certificate of suicide. Funeral services will be conducted from the Lincolnia Baptist Church at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and interment will be at Lincolnia.

VIRGINIA ORCHARDS HARD HIT BY HAIL

Albemarle County Growers Suffer Heavy Loss in Terrific Storm.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 27.—A terrific hail storm, lasting 45 minutes, this afternoon damaged a 15-mile area in one of Albemarle County's richest orchard territories west and northwest of Crozet. Apples and peaches were torn from trees and reduced to pulp in some orchards by large stones, some averaging one inch in diameter. Garden and other growing crops throughout the affected district, including the town of Crozet, were literally driven into the ground.

Reports from some of the largest orchards place the loss at 1,500 barrels, not including permanent damage to trees. Hundreds of windows were broken.

The orchards of J. Hoy Gentry, Maj. R. S. Buck and others, situated in the center of the storm zone, are practically total losses. Hardly more than 10 per cent of the apple and peach crops remain.

C. L. Wayland, of the Consolidated Orchards Co., places his loss at approximately 500 barrels. Portions of the apple orchards of J. A. O'Neill were ruined. He places his loss at 300 barrels. Ray W. Warrick suffered considerable loss.

This is the third heavy blow orchardists in these sections have experienced in as many years. In 1929 the peach crop was almost a total failure because of infestation by worms and insects. Last year it was the drought. These three years of nonproduction have cost, according to estimates of experts, easily $4,000,000.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 27.—The largest graduating class in the history of Fredericksburg High School, consisting of 46 students, will receive diplomas June 2.

The first function in connection with commencement exercises will be the annual junior-senior banquet May 29. The Rev. Churchill J. Gibson, D. D., rector of St. James Church, Richmond, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon May 31, class exercises will be held on June 1, and the delivery of diplomas will be made the following night.

Luray Woman Plans Hunt For 'Ghost' at Murder Scene

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., May 27.—Next Monday night Mrs. Drucilla Buracker, 64, will lead a small army into the Blue Ridge Mountains in this county to test the reality of "ghosts" reported seen at the spot where Edward Buracker was murdered on March 5.

For almost two months Luray has heard reports that certain "things" have been seen and heard at the murder spot since Buracker was slain from ambush.

The identity of Buracker's slayer has not been divulged. David Soura, a farmer, was acquitted of the crime a short time ago in the Page County court. Mrs. Buracker and her army believe that if they are equipped with voice-recording devices something may be learned that will establish the identity of the slayer.

Blackwell relieved him of his gun and the man was suspended.

The town council will consider his case at a meeting on June 1.

A fine of $10 for contempt of court was levied yesterday against Thomas Fleming, colored, when he objected to a fine of $25 imposed for disorderly conduct by Judge J. Chew Sheriff in Hyattsville Police Court. Fleming was one of several persons arrested in a raid on a house in Bladensburg.

Jack Madeoy, who was arrested after police found 68 cases of liquor, disguised as vegetables, on a truck, was fined $200 for possession. He gave an address on Thirteenth street near E street northeast.

John R. Thompson, of Baltimore, was fined $100 after pleading guilty to driving faster than 60 miles an hour on the Baltimore boulevard. Neville L. Rector, of Riverdale, was fined $100 for driving on an expired permit, although a charge of driving while drunk was dismissed. State Policeman C. W. Cubbage arrested the man after seeing him back his car into a ditch.

Lily White, colored, who lives across the road from Bladensburg jail, was fined $50 for possession of liquor. A fine of $50 on a liquor charge was also assessed Patrick Connolly, a soldier stationed at Fort Myer. Connolly was arrested by Constable Jack Wilson, who said two gallons of alleged liquor were found in the car. The soldier said he did not know the contraband was in the auto.

Eugene and Herbert Lane, of Takoma Park, were fined $10 each on charges of disorderly conduct after they entered a plea of guilty. They were arrested at Tom's Barbecue on the Bladensburg road.

Twenty men were taken in a gambling raid in Mount Rainier Tuesday night, and one woman escaped, according to the raiders. Both William Brown and John Listau said they were proprietors of the house on Thirty-eighth street which was raided, and both were charged with setting up a gaming table. In addition, Brown was charged with keeping a disorderly house.

Others in the house arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and held for collateral of $10, were John Roschild, of Seventeenth street near K street northwest; Dan Mahoney, of Third street near D street northwest; Joseph Kimball, of Annapolis, Md.; John Augwick, of M street near Tenth street northwest; Richard Lewney, of Grant place northwest near Ninth street; George Brennan, of East Capitol street near Third street; F. W. Johnson, of Annapolis; Frank Johnson, of Twelfth street northwest near H street; Henry Lehman, of Twelfth street northwest near M street; G. I. Herrald, of Annapolis; F. J. Brennan, of Annapolis; J. W. Thurston, of Annapolis; James Walsh, of Neal street northwest near Fourth street; F. S. Benham, of Fifth street northwest near Taylor street; C. P. Wood, who gave an address on Iowa avenue near Georgia avenue; John Slattery, of Fifth street northeast near H street, and W. J. Kendrick, of Twenty-fifth street northwest near L street.

The raiders, who were led by Eugene Plumer, chief of police of Mount Rainier, said they found a crap game in progress when they broke through the front door. Those arrested were ordered to appear in Hyattsville police court next Wednesday.

Those who made the raid included George Giddens, L. Schnopps and F. E. Draley of the town force and George Wiseman, Lawrence Dayton, Jack Wilson, and Andrew Gasch of the county men.

The Overseas Military Band, Drum and Bugle Corps of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be unable to be present at the Memorial Day services in Mariboro, it has been announced. Previous engagements to lead the G. A. R. parade in the morning and take part in the Arlington ceremonies in the afternoon prevent acceptance of the invitation extended by Stephen W. Gambrill, representative from Maryland.

A memorial service for all dead, rather than only for those who died for their country, will be held at Bell's Church in Camp Springs Sunday at 3 o'clock. The ladies of the church will serve a chicken supper from 4 to 7 o'clock on Decoration Day.

The annual flower show of the Hyattsville Horticultural Society will be held in the First National Bank Building today and tomorrow, under direction of Prof. W. R. Ballard, of the University of Maryland. After the judging on Friday the blooms will be turned over to the Snyder-Farmer Post of the American Legion for use in decorating soldiers' graves.

Assisting Prof. Ballard are W. P. Reinohl, Leslie H. Willis and E. H. Roberts.

MOVIE MAGNATE—Well, I suppose you've heard about it. Girl Movie Star—Heard what?

Movie Magnate—We've got to reduce.

Magnate—I'm talking about salaries, not weight. How much are you getting now?

Star (very bored)—I don't know. They just drive up in trucks and dump it in the conservatory in nice big piles.

Magnate—The books have you down for $500,000 a year, loose and in packages. That's a lot of money, and the directors have met and voted to slash—I think that's the word—salaries all along the line. We're going to cut yours down by two $500 packages a week.

Star (thinking seriously)—How much is twice $500?

Magnate—I dunno, but I'll have my secretary—he's a college man—look it up and tell you.

* * * *

Star (counting on her fingers)—It would be more than $800 a week. That means I would only get something like $490,000 a year. You can't cut my pay like that! If you do I'll quit.

Magnate (drearily)—If you don't we'll all quit.

* * * *

STAR (quite agitated)—I won't stand it, I tell you! I'm a star! I'm famous! I've had offers from everywhere.

Magnate—Lissen, everybody's taking a cut. All I get is $350,000 a year and I'm personally lopping $1i a week off my own salary.

Star (hysterically)—If you want to cut expenses why don't you pay some of those overpriced directors less money?

Magnate—I have cut directors' salaries. Take Lubicowz—he gets $4,000 a day, rain or shine, and only this morning I sent him a letter notifying him that begining next week we would dock him $2 a week. Here's the letter right here on my desk now.

Star—How is the letter on your desk if you sent it to him?

Magnate (bitterly)—He sent it back!

STAR—Well, I'm notifying you once and for all that I'll take no salary reduction. A girl mut live, you know.

Magnate—There are times when I can't see why. Lissen, the situation is serious. We're passing through an economic depression.

Star—A what?

Magnate — Economic depression. You know what that is, don't you?

Star—Let's not talk about our operations.

* * * *

Magnate (pretty discouraged)—Lissen, baby; you've heard rumors, ain't you, that there's a world trade crisis; that there's been a big drop in commodities . . . you know what commodities are, doncher?

Star—You mean Mack Sennett Commodities?

Magnate (desperately)—Look . . . See if you can't grab the idea in a general way. . . . Everything's rotten. . . . Inventories are low, security levels are at the lowest in years . . . the Steel Corporation is down to 38 per cent of production . . . car loadings have taken another drop . . . and I suppose you've heard about Prof. Irving Fisher's index and analysis.

Star—I didn't even know he was sick.

AND STILL LOOKING.

THE truth about that flight of 600 airplanes over the country is out at last. They're trying to locate an optimist.

Secretary of the Navy Adams has abolished the holystone in cleaning decks. The Secretary says it wears out the decks. This will be news to anybody who has observed the light touch of the modern sailor.

If we were Toscanini we would play the Fascist hymn in order to get out of the country. But then we would halt just across the border, summon the orchestra to play "Yes, We Have No Bananas," alternating it with the Phooey Song from "Salami."

Thomas Edison took the wrong bottle by mistake the other day. Further evidence that our best minds these days are highly fallible.
